

Husker runners to tackle Griak

■ The annual Minnesota race is among the best in the country, and Dirksen expects his teams to battle.

BY JASON MERRIHEW
Staff Writer

Coming off an impressive home showing at the Woody Greeno Invite, the Nebraska men's and women's cross country teams will head to Minneapolis to compete in the Roy Griak Invitational.

One of the largest races in the country, the invitational will contain 210 teams with over 2,000 runners.

Nebraska Head Coach Jay Dirksen said both teams will show an improvement from last week.

"I think we will run better than last week in both men's and women's, but the competition is much, much tougher than last week.

"We will see a lot of the top teams in the country," Dirksen said. "We may run a lot better and place not as well."

Showing improvement is more important for the Cornhuskers than placing high, Dirksen said.

"The large competitive field will get both teams ready for the hard conference schedule.

"We have a really difficult schedule on purpose because we feel we can get better from running against good teams rather than going to the meets just because we can win," he said.

The men's team is heading to Minneapolis after sharing first place at the Woody Greeno Invitational last week.

The Cornhuskers' showing was impressive considering four out of the nine runners are true freshmen.

The freshmen include Mike Kamm placing 24th last week, Jed Barta taking 36th, James DeBruhl finishing 39th and Hunter Kosman placing 72nd.

"As the race went on, they got stronger," Dirksen said.

Junior Marcus Witter was the Huskers' top finisher last week with a fifth-place showing.

The Huskers may lose the services of Barta this weekend.

Barta's status is questionable because he is recovering from bronchitis.

For the women, Michelle Brooks led the way last week with a fifth-place showing.

Jamie Pauli and Jeannette Zimmer also had strong showings last week, placing seventh and 13th respectively.

Dirksen also has been impressed by freshman Kathryn Handrup, who placed 15th last week and Jenna Lucas, who Dirksen believes ran better last week than she had all of last year.

Amie Finker, Deb Osteen, Christy Linnell, Steph Stewart and Melissa Drozda will make up the rest of the women's roster for the invitational.

The Roy Griak Invitational will be held at the Les Bolstad Golf Course on Saturday. The women will start at 11 a.m., and the men will follow at noon.

said. "You know, we had to leave our helmets on because we were getting things thrown at us. I'm sure it will be the same this time - it'll be a hostile environment. But that's what college football is all about. It will be a good atmosphere for a good football game."

And a good football game is exactly what Davison, Solich, and the rest of the Huskers expect.

Said Solich: "Missouri presents a great challenge... I think they are comfortable heading into the Big 12 race, and I think they will be a very big part of the Big 12 race. We are looking forward to the challenge."

Vanden Bosch stands out for NU

They both have the same attitude. They don't play real happy. He plays consistently with a bad attitude. It's the attitude you have to have to play this game."

Opposing players know all about that mean attitude and what he can do to them. Even Vanden Bosch's Nebraska teammates have their eyes on him in practice.

"It's definitely good to have a guy like that on your team playing as a teammate with you," said sophomore quarterback Eric Crouch. "Every time in practice I always look for Kyle and what side he is lined up on just to make sure you watch yourself because he is such an aggressive player."

Speed and power are what make him dominant, Epley said. Vanden Bosch's 1.58 seconds in the 10-yard dash are almost as fast as all of NU's I-backs.

So it isn't surprising that Vanden Bosch's first tactic is to try and beat the bigger, slower offensive linemen around the corner. Once Vanden Bosch beats the blocker, all eyes center on him and what he is going to do to the helpless quarterback.

On Saturday, he ran Southern Mississippi quarterback Jeff Kelly down from behind, drove him to the turf and knocked the football loose. It was a play the standout Husker licks his chops on.

"When you are the backside rush, and the quarterback has his back to you," Vanden Bosch said. "That is the hit you dream of."
