

A&M women's basketball makes a comeback

BY SEAN CALLAHAN
Staff writer

There are three women's basketball teams in the Big 12 conference that are already off to undefeated records. The one name that sticks out most in this group is Texas A&M.

When the Aggies take the floor tonight in their game against undefeated Tulane, they will be in a position they're not very used to.

With a 4-0 record, A&M is off to its best start since the 1994-95 season. Last year the Aggies closed the season by losing 16 of their final 19 games to finish 7-20.

This season, first-year Assistant Coach Jeff Caldwell said he thought the Aggies just took a different approach on how they looked at the season.

"I think it seems like we took a new attitude in talking to the alumni and people familiar with A&M basketball," Caldwell said. "We're a more fast-paced team than they've had in the past, and I think we just have some good kids."

On offense A&M is getting it done with a pretty balanced attack. Currently the Aggies have five players averaging double figures.

Two of those players are junior college transfers Tina Jones and Jaynetta Saunders. Saunders has already been named a Big 12 rookie of the week with her 14-point, eight-rebound, four-block shot performance in a 78-48 win over Texas-San Antonio.

Caldwell believes these two players have been great additions to the Aggies.

"Obviously they have," Caldwell said. "The only thing I know about last year's team to this year's is what I've read."

In the Aggies' first four games they have dominated all but one of their opponents - SMU. Texas A&M's average margin of victory has been 28.8 points.

In the SMU game A&M won on the road in overtime 73-69. Caldwell said that was by far the Aggies' best win of the season.

Caldwell said the Aggies couldn't look at the victory over SMU as a huge win.

"That was a pretty big win for our program," Caldwell said. "They are a really good team, but they are not a dominant top 20 team."

People should know that Texas

A&M is a much-improved team from last year, but it still has a long way to go, Caldwell said.

"I don't think we're kidding anybody," Caldwell said.

"We're not ready to play Tennessee right now. I just feel like there's been some changes made for the better."
