

Fliers warn campus of possible danger

"We just decided that it was better to let people know, rather than have something bad happen and not have shared the information we had," Lewis said.

Sanford was last seen after a court appearance Tuesday where he was fined $222 for stealing, said Wendy Coppello, municipal court clerk of the city of Warrensburg, Mo.

He had just been released from Missouri's Johnson County Criminal Justice Center on Monday.

Sanford is scheduled to appear in court for an arraignment on Feb. 25 in Arkansas for the alleged rape of a University of Arkansas student, said Shelly Friend, case coordinator for Judge William Storey in Arkansas' Circuit Court.

Authorities do not know Sanford's location, and records from Arkansas show he has not been assigned a public defender concerning the rape charges.

University of Arkansas Police Lt. Gary Crain said Sanford was arrested on Jan. 25 for allegedly raping a 19-year-old student late Jan. 22 or early Jan. 23 in her room on the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville campus.

Crain said that at the time of the rape, Sanford was visiting the victim and refused to leave when she asked; he also refused to allow the victim to leave.

Sanford was interviewed and arrested on rape charges. He was also arrested for false imprisonment — holding the student against her will.

At the time of the arrest, Sanford attempted to fight with officers, which resulted in additional charges of resisting arrest, terroristic threats and disorderly conduct, Crain said.

Sanford was booked into Washington County Jail in Arkansas.

Lewis said Sanford has been released on bond.

Since his arrest for the alleged rape, Sanford faced charges in Missouri involving stolen items from another female student — the charges he was fined for Tuesday.

The Central Missouri State University student told officers Sanford had been her acquaintance and had been staying with her for a while, said Jeff Murphy, Central Missouri State's news bureau manager.

Sanford was arrested for the stolen items on Feb. 2. He was wearing one of the woman's sweatshirts and her watch, Murphy said.

After the woman had seen safety fliers in a computer lab on the school's campus that warned about Sanford's past offenses, she alerted police about the stolen items.

After Sanford's arrest, Central Missouri State University banned him from their campus, Murphy said.

Lewis did not want to create hysteria on campus by posting the signs.

"This was really an attempt to warn people that there might be a possibility of danger and that they should be aware of that danger," he said.

Armed man eludes police after chase

Police say an armed man remains at large after a high-speed pursuit Wednesday morning.

The chase began when Lincoln police were investigating a disturbance reported Tuesday, which involved the driver of Wednesday's pursuit, Lincoln Police Ofc. Katherine Finnell said.

Officers alerted businesses in the area of 48th and Fremont streets — where Lance McDaniel, 34, a homeless man whose last known address was a Norfolk city mission, was suspected to be — that the suspect had a gun. Officers received a call from Kabredlo's Convenience Store, 3560 N. 48th St., that McDaniel was in the store.

When McDaniel saw police, he jumped into a white Chevrolet Blazer, which had two other occupants, at 11:05 a.m. and took off northbound, Finnell said.

The two others jumped out at 48th and Superior streets, Finnell said.

McDaniel, continuing north on 48th Street, proceeded on Highway 77 where Lancaster Sheriffs joined at Highway 77 and Fletcher Street, said Lancaster County Sheriff Sgt. Andrew Stebbing.

Finnell said officers reported seeing McDaniel hold a gun to his head. The pursuit continued past Highway 77 and West Raymond Road, and McDaniel went west on Davey Road, Stebbing said.

Because the identity of the suspect was known and because of the danger of a high-speed chase, officers called off the pursuit in the town of Davey.

The Blazer was abandoned at 12900 N.W. 98th Street. At about 11:50 a.m., a man reported that a man with a handgun stole his 1979 white and green Oldsmobile from the same place the Blazer was found, Lancaster County Sheriff Terry Wagner said.

The Oldsmobile was last seen west-bound on West Waverly Road at Northwest 112th Street, Wagner said.

Despite help from the Nebraska State Patrol ground and air units, authorities were unable to find McDaniel on Wednesday.

During Tuesday's disturbance at 2915 N. 46th St., the suspect allegedly pointing a gun at Ronald Bennett — who lived at the home — after the two argued. McDaniel had been staying with Bennett, Finnell said.

McDaniel — described as white, 6 feet tall, 170 pounds with brown hair and eyes — had left by the time officers arrived, Finnell said. At the time the pursuit began, police were trying to contact him for information.

McDaniel could face numerous traffic charges, Finnell said. Wagner said McDaniel should be avoided. He is armed with a handgun and has threatened to shoot if taken into custody. If he is seen, police should be notified.
