

— CAMPUS BRIEFS —

Potential employers in the Nebraska Union today

Students have the opportunity to revisit their high school days and attend prom today. But this time, it's a job prom.

The job prom starts at 9:30 a.m. and runs until 3 p.m. in the Nebraska Union.

Highlights of the prom include the "election" of prom royalty from both student and employer participants, and drawings and giveaways of prizes.

Amid all the festivities, students have the chance to visit with employers seeking students wanting summer and part-time jobs and internships.

Health festival offers massages, training

Students falling into the all-too-common pit of junk food have a chance to climb out of their unhealthy ways today on East Campus.

A free "Festival for the Health of It" will be held at Nebraska East Union from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The festival includes fitness demonstrations, health screenings, information and an acupuncturist.

People should preregister at the Campus Recreation office for the adult CPR and CPR re-certification training programs.

The festival also includes cholesterol screening for $3 and a five-minute chair massage for $1.

Woman and child hit by car

A 30-year-old woman protected her 2-year-old daughter from serious injury Tuesday when the two were struck by a car.

The woman and her daughter were about to cross 48th Street at St. Paul Street when a car turned off of St. Paul Street and nearly hit them, Lincoln Police Sgt. Dennis Duckworth said.

The woman lost her balance and fell to the pavement in front of a second turning car. The woman rolled over on top of her daughter to protect her as they were struck by the car, Duckworth said.

The two were dragged 14 feet by the car, but they escaped the accident with minor injuries. The woman was treated at BryanLGH West Medical Center, 2300 S. 16th St., for minor back injuries, and her daughter was treated for a head laceration, Duckworth said.

The driver of the car, Kara Meusch, 19, a student at Nebraska Wesleyan University, was cited for failure to yield.

Police: Man arrested for alleged child abuse

Doctors treating a 3-year-old boy Monday for a broken arm in a bicycle accident noticed injuries not consistent with most bicycle-related injuries, Duckworth said.

The doctors at St. Elizabeth Regional Medical Center, 555 S. 70th St., found multiple bruises on the boy's body that they didn't believe were a result of the accident, Duckworth said.

When asked where the bruises came from, the boy told doctors he had been struck by a shoe, a book and a hand, all by his mother's boyfriend, Jeremy Fenstermaker, 24, 7000 Thurston St., Duckworth said.

Fenstermaker was arrested Monday for child abuse, a class four felony.
