Lincoln man hospitalized after being struck by train

A Lincoln man was hit by a train near campus Sunday morning, breaking ribs and rupturing his spleen, police said.

The train's engineer saw Michael Rogers, 28, walking between the two sets of tracks as the Burlington Northern Sante Fe train approached the 17th Street crossing from the west at 6:30 a.m., Lincoln Police Ofc. Katherine Finnell said.

Rogers was struck by metal equipment hanging off the train and drug about 60 feet, police said. He was taken to BryanLGH Medical Center West where he was in serious condition Monday evening.

Suspect caught upon return to the scene of the crime

The man who robbed a Lincoln convenience store last week returned to the same store early Monday morning and was spotted by the clerk he robbed. Lincoln Police arrested Clint Ingalls, 22, Monday in the robbing the 946 S. 27th St. U-Stop and for two outstanding warrants, Finnell said.

Just after 2 a.m. Thursday, Ingalls had entered the store and shoplifted a bottle of beer, Finnell said. Then Ingalls returned and robbed the store, taking the entire cash drawer, she said.

Repeated calls lead to rave discovery outside Lincoln

A dozen loud music complaints led police to a 400-person rave just outside city limits early Sunday morning.

Lancaster County Sheriff deputies and Lincoln police found the crowd in a field near 201 W. South St. along with psychedelic lights and evidence of drug use, Sheriff Capt. George Lahners said.

Police cited John Lecher, 46, for having the party without proper permits, and another man, Ronald Talbert, 43, was being sought for disturbing the peace, obstructing police and the amusement violation.

Lahners said they were charging for parking, water, juice and candy. He said the smell of marijuana smoke was evident, and most of the parties were younger than 20.

Two men cited for minor in possession in UNL lot

Two men were ticketed for underage possession of beer Friday night in two separate incidents in a Harper-Schramm-Smith parking lot.

A Community Service Officer reported seeing one man with a bottle of rum standing on the north side of the food service complex at 10:45 p.m., University Police Assistant Chief Mylo Bushing said.

An officer ticketed David Kinnar, 20, for minor in possession of alcohol. Kinnar is from Norfolk and not a UNL student.

Then on the officer's way out of the parking lot, he spotted another man with a can of beer walking through the lots.

The officer cited sophomore Scott Gohl, 20, for minor in possession.

After the United States and its allies emerged victorious from WWI, the American economy, political model and culture were ascendant in the world. In the interwar years, however, things went terribly wrong. The seeds of the totalitarian movements of the 1930's that led to WWII were planted, in part, by the way we dealt with the happy and prosperous 1920's. Today, in an era reminiscent of the years following WWI, we are again living in largely happy and prosperous times. What insights can we draw from past experience and our knowledge of today's world that will enable us to do a better job of preserving the peace than was done in the years between WWI and WWII?

We gave disposable cameras to 20 NU students and asked them to take pictures of their lives for one week. We didn't tell them what we wanted to see. We didn't even know most of their names. We just handed them cameras and said "show us college life."

Come see how normal we really are.
