 finds that spark and makes it work for her."
 Kostelnik sees a larger picture beyond the everyday work that she does.
 Every program in the College of Human Resources and Family Sciences contributes to the overall quality of life, she said.

 And it is a cooperative effort between students, faculty and alumni.
 "That's a cool thing to be a part of," she said.

Spade could set stage for celebrity visits

BY JILL ZEMAN

If student response is strong for comedian David Spade's performance tonight, bringing a well-known celebrity to campus could become a tradition in the coming years.

 Spade will perform tonight at 7:30 at the Bob Devaney Sports Center. Before his performance will be an opening act, which Spade himself arranged to bring to campus.

Spade's performance is sponsored by the Association of Students of the University of Nebraska, the University Program Council and the Athletic Department.

Ticket sales were sluggish at first, but they're starting to pick up. Close to 4,000 seats have been sold, said Joel Schafer, ASUN president.

Tickets, which cost $12.50 for students, will still be available at the door at the time of the performance, Schafer said.

Before Spade begins his act,

NU football and basketball coaches Frank Solich and Barry Collier will speak, along with captains of the football team, Schafer said.

"It will be fun," he said.
 Schafer said bringing Spade to campus sets a precedent for the coming years to recruit popular stars.

No matter what the final count of tickets sold is, Schafer said he viewed the event as a success, even before seeing the performance.

"Other than Husker football, what other event do you see 3,000 students show up for?" Schafer said.

"Whenever you bring that many students together for anything, it's successful," he said.

Rachelle Winkle, ASUN

Homecoming Committee co-chairwoman, also called the event a success.

"If students are excited, it's a success," she said.

Winkle said arranging for Spade's performance has been a learning experience that will help the Homecoming Committee in the future.

Because of this gained knowledge, Winkle said she hoped next year the committee could bring another big-name performer.

The committee tried to anticipate what students wanted to see, and this year Spade seemed a solid choice.

Now Winkle and other organizers can sit back and enjoy the fruits of their labor.

"I'm excited," she said. "Now we just wait and let it happen."
