

high, beating his former record by one inch. This is the highest indoor jump on record.

A Kansas college press association was recently formed at Topeka. Eleven college papers were represented. The objects of the association are to advance journalism in the higher institutions of learning, and to bring about a more harmonious feeling between the colleges of the state. There is as much room for harmony in Kansas as in any state we know of, therefore we congratulate our brother editors in that field, and sincerely hope Nebraska college editors will follow their example.

MODERN AGNOSTICISM.

"The professors are wrong," said the student at college,
 "In giving me marks that are low.
 For, with Huxley, I think that the height of all knowledge
 Is in the three words 'I don't know'!"

"While Europe has but 94 universities, yet she has 1,723 more professors, and 41,814 more students than the 360 colleges of the United States."

The above paragraph, which we remember seeing in the college papers some three or four years ago, was found twice in the columns of a down-east paper this year. We offer it, partly to justify our course in making up this column, and partly as a consolation to any one who finds fault with matter contained herein on account of its being stale.

SONG OF THE SENSITIVE SOUL.

O give me less or give me more!
 Vanity which makes me soar
 Then lets me drop like leaden ore.
 O give me less or give me more!
 O give me less or give me more!
 Conceit which makes me such a bore,
 Yet with this knowledge makes me sore.
 O give me less or give me more!

The University of Pennsylvania Courier has this to say of the recent bowl fight there: "The Sophomores and Freshmen appeared, at 1.30, on opposite sides of the field, determined, if necessary, to die in support of their class. The fight was fast and furious, clothes were torn in a heart-rending manner, and more than one pugilistic student was divested of his garments in a manner which would have brought blushes to his cheeks, had he been anywhere else at the time. The Sophs failing to put the bowlman in the bowl, and the Freshmen failing to demolish the bowl, the fight was declared a draw."

Query: Does civilization civilize?

All things I thought I knew;
 But now confess
 The more I know I know,
 I know the less.

Physical Training Notes.

The baths are open again after a week's stoppage for repairs. The trouble was a leak in the pipe below the cement floor. The repairing has been done so that the same trouble is not likely to occur again.

The latest addition to our outfit is that of ninety-six lockers for the ladies' dressing-room. They are made by the Narragansett Machine Co., and have combination locks. This gives the young women equal gymnasium advantages with the young men, except in the matter of shower baths.

In order to secure the advantage of horizontal bar work by a whole class at once, Mr. Bowen is using the innovation of two bars of Swedish pattern, twenty feet long, suspended by ropes. The bars can be detached and the ropes are in place for traveling rings, although the rings cannot be purchased just now.

The students in this department will give two exhibitions early in April—the ladies and the men's classes appearing on separate evenings. Admission will be by ticket, and limited to the number of seats that can be placed in the gymnasium without interfering with class work. Besides the class drills given there will be various athletic contests, open to the students of the University. The latter feature is always attractive, and ought to bring out considerable new talent and begin the preparation for field day contests.
