The tennis courts were in use all summer, a tournament being in progress.

The latest styles in Hats and Neckwear have just arrived at the Ewing Clothing Co.

The class of 1900 promises to be a big one. There are five divisions of Preparatory English.

A large hydrant has been put in by the city and now the university has ample protection from fire.

The greenhouse has been greatly enlarged and a separate hot-house for entomologists has been erected.

And it has come to this! That that chapel must be used for classes. Oh, horrible! Most horrible!

It is not an uncommon sight to see 200 students standing in the chapel aisle during the morning exercises.

Watch the windows at the Ewing Clothing Co. for novelties in dress, and the late and proper thing to wear.

For fine clothing well made The Ewing Clothing Co. is always, have been, and they say they always will be The Leaders.

Mr. John Doane, secretary of the city Y. M. C. A., delivered an excellent address in chapel last Sunday afternoon.

If no one says anything the new students will always believe that we had big fire gongs and real Christian sidewalks.

At 1st Lenhoff has met his conqueror. A new man in school named Turner stands an inch or more taller than he does.

The shops have been extended fifty feet south, and in this addition, the forges and machinery for iron working are placed.

Seven hundred students at chapel, with two hundred of them standing, makes the growth of the University of Nebraska very evident.

That this is the last year of the first preparatory class is very evident from the very large number of first year students entering.

The information bureau of the Christian Association proved a great success. New students were rendered invaluable assistance.

The class in Freshman Physics is almost double the size it was last year, and the laboratory is much satisfactory work.

A new course in music is attracting attention. The project is the strengthening of the department.

by the new music Tuesday night by one of the best ever gath- ering. Prof. as the lion of the composition class.

The new men are drilling as usual, in awkward squads, and the old men in setting-up exercises. In a week, the old cadets will begin artillery and sabre drill.

Many changes and improvements have been made to meet the increase in attendance. A board has been added the entire distance to the walk leading to the south-east gate.

What did Fred Barnes do? He spent the summer sojourning in the following places: Rock Island, Peoria, Jacksonville, Lincoln, Omaha, St. Joe, Des Moines and Quincy.

Next Sunday the Chancellor will deliver an address to the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s in the chapel. His subject will be "Bible Study," and the Chancellor can not but make it interesting.

Some of the new people have an unlimited supply of nerve, one freshman who tried to register for twenty-two hours, felt quite hurt when the registrar told him what she thought of such a proceeding.

In the Physics class room the seats have been arranged one above another in a pyramid form. Whether to keep the class in order or to allow the students to see the lecture table, is a question.

Monday, the battalion met for the first time. The registration is now over three hundred and fifty. Anyone may drill who desires, as the Lieutenant is going to make this year's battalion larger and better than any preceding one.

At noon on Tuesday 433 new students had registered; this means 500 by October 1st. The number at that time last year was 359. The old students bring the number up to 900, assuring a total registration of over 1000 by October 1st.

The weather bureau has been moved over to Nebraska Hall. There is some very neat apparatus for recording weather. A cylinder is attached to the weather vane and turns when it does. This is marked into hours and directions, and down it travels a pen at the rate of twenty-four hours a trip, and this pen marks the direction of wind at any hour in the day. There is also an instrument which registers the hours of sunshine and one registering the number of miles of the wind.

A few improvements and changes have been made in the library this summer. New book shelves have been added and a new magazine case has been made. Quite a number of new books were received, mostly for the English, History and Political Economy departments. There are also a new lot of interesting educational reports from all over the country. Miss Compton and Mr. Thayer are new assistants, and Miss Robbins, the new cataloguer, will arrive in a month.

Several improvements have been made about the University lately. Owing to the increased attendance a center board has been added to the sidewalk. Since the co-eds have grown so numerous, it has been hard to hear the bells for classes; so new class bells have been placed in the halls. They are very beautiful to look upon, but as to noise they resemble fire bells more than anything else. They are very nice things to throw shot at, so the preps think.

The debating clubs met and organized last Saturday evening. The Palladians elected the following officers:

President, R. P. Teele.
Vice-president, R. S. Baker.

In the museum. Elderly lady—"I just don't believe them tusks ever grew on an animal. The Bible don't say so."

"Well, them's the first authenticated mummies I ever saw!" "Oh, mamma! come look at the monkies!"

The new conservatory of music adds eleven more to the faculty of the state university. The little pamphlet which was issued by the conservatory management and sent abroad over the state is regarded as quite an ad for the university. The typographical work is of the finest, the cuts are clear and show that they are the product of skilled workmanship. Every student would do well to obtain one and examine it carefully from the frontis piece, which is a portrait of Professor Kimball, to the cut of the new conservatory as it will appear when finished, on the outside cover.
