Professor Card was one of the committee and has received word that a meeting will be held in Washing, D. C. January 20, to take action on a scheme for testing seeds.

Professor Sherman is showing to his friends a letter from a professor in an important eastern university, who led the attack against the method of studying literature here used, four years ago. This professor admits frankly that he cannot get anything like such results as are reached in our university, and he proposes to know more about the method which Professor Sherman uses.

It was in order during the past week to have pictures taken. The officers of the battalion had possession of the Elite-Studio over two hours, Monday afternoon, (the delay being caused by the non-appearance of the big captain of company "C" who had to be routed out of a class before he appeared. The companies will each have their pictures in the annual, each picture occupying a page.

NOT RECONCILED.

Abbotites and Killianites Still Fighting For Presidency of the Maxwells.

The Maxwell scrap is still delightfully interesting. In the last meeting before the holidays the club went into a committee of the whole to decide on the merits of the claims of Abbot and Killian for the presidency. They decided in favor of Abbott.

Greenfield (Killianite) served notice that he would have the motion reconsidered. The Abbott crowd then promptly had the motion reconsidered and again decided in favor of Abbott. This cut off discussion on the point absolutely and left Abbott in possession of the chair.

The secretary is a Killianite and did not record the reconsideration nor Greenfield's notice in the minutes. Last Saturday night the Killianites were in majority. They then proposed to reconsider but this required a two-thirds vote as it suspended the usual order of business. The vote was lost and decided lost by Abbott then in the chair. The decision of the chair was appealed from and carried.

Mr. Abbott then left the chair, as it was his right to office that was being considered and Mr. Green (Killianite), the vice-president took charge.

M. Green made little pretence at honesty but the ridiculous blunders of his constituents gave his opponents all they could have asked for.

The minutes were adopted as amended but C. P. Wilson (Abbotite) voted with the opposition and then moved for a reconsideration. To the intense amusement of his crowd the chairman did not put the motion. As the reconsideration of the contest depends on the minutes, the whole question is left precisely where it was before the meeting commenced. All the Abbott crowd have to do is to get out their whole following next time, reconsider the amendments of the minutes and as they have the majority the proceedings of last time will be undone. They may amend the minutes to show the motions reconsidered last time had been once reconsidered and the last state of Killian's position will be worse than the first.

The chairman ruled out of order nearly every motion and amendment of the Abbotites but a few that were forced upon his recognition and voted down by his crowd.

The question of investigating the alleged fraud was discussed but when it came to voting upon a committee the Killianites were careful to exclude the inquisitiveness of the legal profession. They voted down the motion to have Judge Reese chairman of the committee. Professors Robbins and Wilson were also voted out.

THE PERSHING RIFLES.

At a meeting of the Pershing Rifles held on Thursday evening January 7, it was decided that the Rifles should represent the military department of the university on Charter-day by giving an exhibition drill. As the weather on Charter-day cannot be relied upon, drills will be worked up by the Rifles so that they can accommodate themselves to any kind of weather and if indoor drill is necessary they will be prepared to give it. If the drill takes place outdoors it will consist of the movements in the school of th company including the bayonet exercises which will be somewhat of a novelty. The drill will be concluded by the battle exercises as has always been the custom.

A novel indoor drill has been arranged for in case the weather is such as to render outside drill impossible. It has been decided to devote Thursday evenings of the regular weekly drill to the manual of arms and to put in an additional Saturday afternoon in order to prepare for the Charter-day exhibition. For the two weeks immediately preceding Charter-day the company will probably drill every day.

There are still a very few vacancies left in the ranks and any of the old cadets who think themselves capable of filling these places may have their names presented for consideration, by applying to their company commanders.

The Pershing Rifles are now composed of the following: captain, Schwarz; first lieutenant, Oury; second lieutenant, Parmelee; sergeants, Weeks, Hyde, Grant, Hedge, Gage; corporals; Belnap, A. L. Brown, Cosgrove, Roddy, Hastie, Barr, Davenport, Morrison; privates; O. Brown, Christie, Clark, Clements, Collett, Davidson, Etting, Garringer, Gordon, Haggard, Hendy, Harmon, Hollingsworth, Hessler, Helmrod, Lehnhoff, McCreary, Mumford, Noyes, Osborn, Philbrick, Pullis, Pinkerton, Ricketts, Ryan, Russell, Saxton, Shuff, Sumner, Stebbins, Shedd, True, VanValin, Taylor, Wordner, White, Whedon and Wetzel.

INDOOR TRAINING

Indoor training was begun in the gymnasium for field day on last Monday evening. Quite a number have entered this training class, and several more have signified their intention of so doing. For about two weeks the training will consist of all around exercises. After this the boys will go into training for the special events in which they intend to compete on field day. This class in indoor training is open to all who wish to enter except that all who enter are expected to compete on field day and it is not intended simply to afford exercise to those who have no intention of entering these contests.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. is planning to have a social during Charter week.

The glee club will sing at the devotional meeting of the association next Sunday afternoon.

The glee club was in demand last Sunday, going out to the asylum and singing for the inmates for nearly an hour and then singing at the devotional meeting of the association later.

There will be a business meeting Saturday evening in the room in the basement of the main building. Important business will come up for consideration, and it is necessary that every member be present.

AMERICAN STUDY IN ROME.

The Yale News gives the following interesting account of the American school in Rome:

The American school of classical studies in Rome opened this year on the 15 of October. Professor Minton Warren of Johns Hopkins is director, and Professor Allen Marquand of Princeton his assistant. These gentlemen succeed Professor Hale of the university of Chicago, and Professor Frothingham of Princeton, who were connected with the American school last year, in accordance with a regulation of the committee, by which the director and his assistant simply hold their position for a single year.

Up to the present time the school has occupied the Villa Aurora with the original occupant, the American school of architecture. Both schools developed to such proportions that a change was considered advisable, and during the past summer the school of classical studies moved to the Villa Story. This is the commodious building on the corner of the Via Palestro and the Via Gaeta, formerly occupied by Mr. Waldo Story, the sculptor. The upper portion is used as a residence, while the lower part is already adapted for the requirements of the school.

The students who have entered to pursue a course of study the present year, come from a number of the eastern colleges and others. They must all be college graduates, a requirement requisite for membership in the school. A number of these have doctors' diplomas and are professors in colleges. There is a regular course of study with lectures on numismatics, paterography, manuscripts, inscriptions, archaeology and other subjects. These prescribed studies do not interfere with the advantages offered by other schools in Rome of which the students may avail themselves. The success of the school is now assured beyond a doubt. What it needs is an endowment, and Professor Hale, the resident director proposes to give the question his especial attention in America during the coming year. As this is only the second year of the school's existence, it having been started on the 15 of October of last year, it is interesting to note the almost remarkable gain it has made in nearly every department since that time.
