The Nebraskan will be sent to any address upon receipt of the subscription price, which is one dollar a year.

Contributions are solicited from all. News items such as locals, personals, reports of meetings, etc., are especially desired. The Nebraskan will be glad to print any contribution relative to a general university subject, but the name must accompany all such.

Address all communication to the Nebraskan, University of Nebraska.

Vacation number one is past and all is well. Christmas is next on the list. Soon may it come.

That the Varsity should be beaten in the last game of the season and that, too, by poor old Iowa is indeed hard to bear.

Washington has a University of Nebraska club in flourishing condition and capable of giving banquets when occasion demands. The rousing reception given Chancellor MacLean when in that city a short time ago is evidence conclusive and shows too that college men do not soon forget their alma mater. Why can we not have more of such enthusiasm shown by alumni clubs?

Now that the football season is over there is time to think of oratory, debate, and other things of like character, which will occupy the attention of students from time to time hereafter. There is especial interest this year in both debate and oratory. For the man who is capable of winning the local contest there is much in store. He will have the opportunity of competing here in Lincoln with the other colleges of the state for the honor of representing the state in the interstate contest, which is also to be held here this year. Nine have already registered for the local contest but nine are not nearly enough. Twenty-five or thirty would not be too many. There is nothing a practice in oratory, and debate to develop the man. To know things is not to be educated. One must, as well be able to tell others what he knows and tell it clearly, concisely and forcibly.

The boys from Ames played football and were signally defeated by the Nebraskan's early in the season and it was during that game that an Ames player sustained a broken leg. The fracture was attended to by a local physician who was told by the Ames boys that the bill would be paid by Nebraska, they having been so informed by the manager of the Nebraska team. In due course of time the bill was sent to the athletic board who very ungenerously refused to pay it, alleging that each team was to care for its own players. It may be true that in accordance with a strict interpretation of the rules Ames should pay and yet it would seem to have been only a courteous act on the part of the board, especially in the light of the attending circumstances, to have paid uncompromisingly so small a bill.

College and University people the country over are interested in the pertinent need of college presidents. Yale, Amherst and Brown are without executives.

Dr. Timothy Dwight of Yale in his resignation created a vacancy which is easier made than filled. He succeeded Noah Porter in 1866. His grandfather, Timothy Dwight, was president of Yale from 1795 until 1817. He was the ablest of Yale's early presidents. The present Timothy Dwight when he took his seat in 1866 said that he would withdraw from the post whenever he became convinced that his usefulness to the University was at an end. President Dwight was born at Norwich, November 16, 1828, and was graduated from Yale in 1849 as salutatorian. Before taking the presidency he held the chair of sacred literature in the Divinity school.

Amherst, Brown, and Oberlin are casting about for the desired persons to lead them to future greatness. The fact that college presidents are not found in every pulpit or in every chair of the college is apparent; and the colleges and universities seem of necessity very willing to wait until the desired man shall appear. The corporation of Brown university surely needs sympathy in its past and present difficulties with college presidents.

The disqualifying of college athletes as professionals may perhaps be carried too far. Notice the case of Gordon Clarke of the University of Chicago, who was disqualified prior to the Chicago-Wisconsin game. The professional act of which he was accused was committed while Clarke was a student in Omaha High school and prior to the passage of the anti-professional rules by the Universities. He was a bona fide student of Chicago months before the passage of the rule on professionalism. Technically, of course, Clarke is guilty, but the spirit was purely that of an amateur. No agitation on the part of the college warned young Clarke and according to his brother Henry, the act was entirely innocent as regards motive. The action of the athletic authorities creates an ex post facto law for athletes.

Speaking entirely outside of politics of the case, the triumph of Theodore Roosevelt in New York is a signal one. Surely, as long as men of the Roosevelt stamp can be elected to high public offices, America is what it claims to be, the best for the best. Mr. Roosevelt is a scholar. A man of the highest attainments and a representative college bursar. He scorns the man who thinks politics beneath him, as well as the man who flourishes thereby. Theodore Roosevelt's literary and historical works are of the highest rank.

Supt. Andrews, of the Chicago schools, formerly president of Brown University, is not meeting with the entire approbation of the Chicago school board. This does not signify that Supt. Andrews is not right. His most reasonable request for a seat, without a vote, in the Board meeting was emphatically denied. Such a privilege is the right of every superintendent. The Chicago Board evidently prefers its own council to the advice of the superintendent. In emulation of the Lincoln Board, each member would constitute himself superintendent of schools.

BASKET BALL.

December 13th the basket ball season will open with Wesleyan University at the State University. The triangular league has been perfected and intercollegiate basket ball will be played this year.

The University will put a strong team in the field and the competition for places is so close that it is hard to say who will be the fortunate ones.

While this is the first year for basket ball at Doane and Wesleyan, yet they have expended all their energy in that direction and will have strong teams.

The University boys expect to play a clean, scientific game this year and considerable college spirit should be aroused.

Every boy and girl who has had gymnasium work in the University is acquainted with basket ball, and with their support it should this year take its proper place in University Athletics.

During January teams outside of the triangular league will be played and the University hopes to extend its reputation.

Quite an exciting basket ball game was played last Monday night between the three o'clock team and the eight o'clock team. The score stood at the close of the game 10 to 8 in favor of the three o'clock team. Some brilliant individual playing was done. In the first half Ahern made two goals from the field and Hunter one from the field for the three o'clock team. Osborne and Maddox each made one goal from the field and Morrison two on fouls for the eight o'clock team. The score at the end of the first half stood 6 to 6.

In the second half Stull and Hunter each made a goal for the eight o'clock team and Maddox made one for the three o'clock team, making the final score 8 to 10 in favor of the three o'clock team. Ahern, Morrison, Stull and Berry deserve special mention for ability and effort shown in the game.

The following indicates the positions played by the various men:
Forwards—Ahern, Hunter; Morrison, Maddox.
Center—Stull, Osborne.
Backs—Nies, Boyle; Jeffrey, Berry.

The officials of the game were: referee, Dr. Hastings; umpires, Anderson and McDowell; time keeper, Stebbins; scorer, Pryce.

ATHLETIC BOARD MEETS.

A special meeting of the Athletic Board was held last Wednesday to consider charges against Manager Beschoff and Captain Meador of the Foot Ball team for breaking certain of the rules governing athletics in the University.

Action was deferred as Manager Beschoff was in Omaha and could not appear in his defense. The charges are grave and a thorough investigation has been ordered.
