MAN'S LITTLE HERE BELOW.

The following attempt comes from Northwestern, along with the state-ment that the bard felt himself bound to help the syllabus board. Inasmuch as it is positively stated that he had never made any previous attempts to write poetry, we can not help but admire his determination. Why the copy was not used for what the writer intended it, is not clear.

There is a lady fair to see, Her eves a lovely gray; Her image ever comes to me As graceful as a-popinjay -load of hay

-milky way How graceful she may seem to be I find it hard to say.

This lady fair beyond compare For lovers does not lack: Her lips are sweet, her smile complete In like a rabbit track carpet tack gunny sack (Just wait; I'll take that back.)

And when I go to see this maid. Or when we chance to meet. It fills my heart with happiness To hear her-gentle bleat -ugly feet smile so sweet-

To see her smile so sweet,

Her years are few; innocent youth Is hers, and easy comes the blush; Her speech is low; her voice in truth As mellow as a blacking brushroyal flush--bowl of mush-

As mellow as a note of thrush,

And when I compliment her taste, I think I see her smile; The contour of her perfect waist Is like a-rat-tail file--lumber pilecanomile Oh, homille! I'll finish this one after while.

Fair lady, I would further rhyme, But here the Muse doth lag. I'll try again some other time, My sweet and bony nag ugly hag beastly jag Again I've struck a snag.

It's not so easy as I thought, It's worse than an exam.; I write no rhymes; let them be bought: I'd much prefer to jam-

-slam -d--!--cram-

I'd much prefer to cram. Talk of woes and tribulations, Talk of "tin" and poor relations, Talk of bugs in army rations, Talk of typhoid "got" in war-But not one of these is in it, For a second of a minute. With the troubles of a "scribbler" Not b' far !

Talk of funny brain gyrations, Talk of "culture's" aspirations, Talk of fresh, red-hot sensations, Talk of leads and scoops and moves; These, these are his forever!

And a wish for "pants" of leather, As he writes behind a three-times bolted door!

NO DATE AGREED UPON.

The Minnesota and Wisconsin managers were unable to come to any arrangement yesterday regarding a game for next fall. Wisconsin's only op a date, November 18, was that of the Minnesota-Chicago game, so that date was out of the question. The entire catalogue of dates for both teams was gone through and the only remaining chance for the two universities to meet is in case one of the lesser games of either institution can be changed to correspond with the open date of the other. Both managers are still hopeful of making satisfactory arrangements.
