

STRAY PICK-UPS.

Artillery drill has been resumed.

Has anyone serenaded Sawyer lately?

Mr. Meeker is not in school this term.

Miss Getner has been kept from school by illness.

The long delayed catalogue will soon be published.

Grant hall will be considerably improved internally.

Mr. Ferneau has dropped school work and entered a law office.

The juniors still claim to be "cock of the walk" in ball matters.

A misfortune at home requires Mr. Nelson's presence there this term.

Miss Getner missed the first week of school on account of illness.

Arrangements have already been made for laying the stone walks.

At this writing Mr. Montmorency is too ill to return to school work.

The fellow that broke the Union slate broke Mr. Stroman's heart.

Miss Lula Correll, of Hebron, Neb., was visiting Miss Bigelow recently.

Miss Ducker and brother got back to school in time to enjoy the mumps.

The classes have had the usual term elections to distribute the honors of office.

Thursday, April 9, Mr. Lehmer felt in a humor to address an ode to the grippe.

A young lady says that some people are too Eager to see their names in print.

Members of the senior class voted on school matters. How did that happen?

W. B. Pillsbury went home over Sunday to see the girl that is a sister to him.

Mr. Dean and sister, of the Ashland high school, were at the university last week.

Renovating and repairing the chemical laboratory will begin as soon as school closes.

The work of the cadets during this term will consist almost entirely of battalion drill.

What kind of a lesson were Mr. Skiles and Miss — getting in chapel one morning last week?

Professor Bessey is now busy answering the letters of disappointed candidates for positions.

Senator Hill and Mr. Drake visited the university and watched the boys drill Friday the 3rd.

Miss Florence Smith, on account of sickness at home, has been unable to attend classes this term.

Mrs. Kingsley recently received a telegram announcing the death of her mother at Salem, Mass.

Mr. Welch was missed the early part of the term. He was in Iowa attending a fraternity convention.

Professor Bessey is exceedingly glad that the duties of chancellor will bother him but a short time longer.

Mr. Reese, last term finished his course with eight hours to his credit. He does not attend classes this term.

Geo. Hall was unable to attend school the first week of the term on account of a severe attack of la grippe.

On account of his work for the government, Professor Hicks will not continue the class in elective geology.

Two thousand dollars has been appropriated by the regents for the immediate purchase of books for the library.

The Thursday afternoon lectures were resumed last Thursday with the first of a series of three lectures by Miss Moore.

Miss Lyons, to Mr. A. M. Troyer stroking a muff: You seem to want something to pet. Mr. Troyer: I do; but not a lion.

Mr. T—, after wrestling with a very difficult passage of a foreign language, fell asleep in class, presumably from exhaustion.

Professor Fulmer: "Yes, they have been falling out for some time, so I shaved them off." Ask him if bromine is a good bleacher.

Mr. Bonnell: Boys, don't bother the girls. One of the boys: No, follow Mr. B's example and give all your attention to one of them.

The closing scenes of the legislature were exciting, noisy, and at times dangerous. The Uni. yell was there to aid in the general uproar.

In the physical laboratory: he (in accents tender)—Well then I'll call you Anna. Is that alright? She (smiling sweetly)—Yes, my dear.

Ask Mr. Welch what kind of a time he had at Ashland during vacation and what price he offered to pay for the ducks he could not shoot.

It is currently reported that Mr. Barkley and Mr. McCrosky love to meet fair maidens in the museum of Nebraska hall, and chat awhile.

Dr. Kingsley's name appears among the names of other men who are announced to lecture at the marine biological laboratory, Wood's hall, Mass.

The lettering of the Delian program for the contest, so artistically done, was executed with an ordinary pen by Mr. Rydberg, a member of the society.

Mr. Oberlies and Miss — are the only people in school that thoroughly enjoy a muddy day—when Mr. O. cannot ride his bicycle to and from school.

Friday, the 10th, Professor Howard was called home by a message announcing the sudden illness of his father. Saturday he was not expected to live.

Until recently Miss — has regularly taken the street car to her home on Twenty-fourth street. Now she finds it more pleasant to walk,—as does someone else.

Landlady, to Mr.—(who has just finished reciting his oration): I wish you would not say your prayers quite so loudly; I can hear you from the kitchen.

By means of written translations to be read before the class, the class in Xenophon will try next fall term to read all of the seven books of that author's Anabasis.

The second prep class of the classical course is interested in New Testament Greek. Some of the members propose to continue reading it during the summer vacation.

Miss Miller and Miss Mandeville, teachers in the Beatrice schools, visited the university recently. They made arrangements for summer work under Professor Fossler.

The first and second battalions have been organized in accordance with general orders No. 6. They will drill one extra day in two weeks and in the alternate week they will have battalion drill instead of regular drill on one of the regular drill days.