

Mr. White, '95, spent the latter part of last week at his home in Palmyra.

Cadets will be properly uniformed for the first time this year next Friday.

Miss Case was unable to attend the Palladian banquet on account of sickness.

The Duke of York went to see how the duchess was getting along last week.

Messrs. Butte, Durrell, and Brook spent the holidays at their home in Ashland.

The Union society dined in room 4 and frolicked in their hall last Friday evening.

J. G. Smith has added 200 specimens of Australian plants to the university herbarium.

How to induce the boys to scratch the slate is a much vexed problem still unsolved.

As usual, a large number of students went home to eat turkey and cranberry sauce.

Professor Bessey's work upon the trees and plants of Nebraska is now on the market.

To the curiosities of the university museum, Regent Morrill has added a family of beavers.

Blair staid at Omaha after the foot ball game to visit friends. He returned Friday night.

Misses Korsmeyer, Land and Fletcher ate cranberry sauce in Ashland with the Misses Mansfeldt.

Cotner thinks she can play foot ball. She defeated the Wesleyan in three consecutive games.

A prize should be offered for the best university song to be written by a student or a graduate.

A number of students were entertained at the residence of Mrs. Loughridge the evening of the 25th.

Dixon, '94, took in the foot ball game, came back to Lincoln, and then went home to spend Sunday.

J. C. Graham spent Thanksgiving vacation at home. He had a very enjoyable party Friday evening.

J. B. McDonald visited his uncle, Ex-Governor Boyd, while at Omaha taking in the foot ball game.

Professor William Sanders of Ottawa, Canada, recently visited the scientific department of the University.

The Palladian girls squared accounts on the banquet by providing and paying for the "feed" last Friday night.

Stward Dales has had four discarded microscopes repaired. They are capable of working one-eighth objective or higher.

The fellows that do not take a girl to the benefit concert to be given to the foot ball team should be put in petticoats.

Mr. Pollard ordered fifty cadet suits. They came from the Pettibone Manufacturing company of Cincinnati, Ohio.

All members of the elective German class are invited to spend the evening of the 3rd at the residence of Professor Fessler.

The classics of the junior class have finished reading Plantus and have taken the final examination. Terence has been begun.

Get the November number of the Pennsylvania Sugar Beet and see what it has to say about the university experiment station.

The state oratorical contest to be held at Nelgh will soon be upon us. As yet there is no sign of a university quartette to relieve the monotony of our yell, and to show to the outside world our college spirit.

Nusz has returned to the university to resume his studies. He is feeling a little weak yet, and probably will not play foot ball for some time.

Misses Roberts, Dempster, Gregg, Treat, Case, Day, and Birks are a few of the many girls that went home to spend the Thanksgiving intermission.

Marshall found out last week that there were four co eds. with whom he was not acquainted. He, like a gallant youth, immediately secured an introduction.

Who would take Stockton for a masher? Just ask him why he preferred seeing some school ma'am home from the train to coming up town with the rest of the boys.

Get your sister, mother, your best girl, or somebody's best girl and take in the benefit concert. It is going to be fine and you don't want to miss it, neither does she.

Professor Bessey delivered a lecture on "Why not Prolong Student Life?" before the Central Nebraska Teachers' Association which met at Hastings, November 27 and 28.

There is nothing the "Scis" and "Lits" miss more these days than the band of hoodlums that use to meet in the north end of the reading room and recite their classic lore.

For the finer experiments in vegetable physiology, Professor Bessey has ordered a special balance, which will be used for weighing the water that evaporates from the plant.

After unrelenting efforts during the fall, J. B. White succeeded the 20th of November in dislocating from their ethereal abode, a blue jay, a shrike, and a tree sparrow. Well done, Jake.

Of the fifty that went to Omaha to take in the foot ball game only twenty-five came back Thursday night. They were not ashamed to return to the Uni, but went home to see their mammas.

Now that Gates college does the work of the freshman and sophomore years only, the University of Nebraska may expect a large number of Gates college students to complete their courses here.

Chancellor Canfield read before a meeting of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., November 22, that wonderful article in a recent number of the Century, "The White Cross." It was an agreeable surprise and a profitable departure from the usual order of services.

Professors Barbour and Taylor gave the Omaha people a great surprise when they contributed to the art exhibit now on display there a collection of polished agates from the university museum. Omaha was not aware that such precious gems were in possession of the state university.

The Delians were very pleasantly entertained last Friday evening by Misses Grote and McCartney at the former's rooms in the Barr-Lamaster block. An unusual amount of un and "feed" was participated in, and the wish expressed by all was that Thanksgiving vacations would come oftener.

A lady from Indiana recently stopped a student at the entrance to the university campus and asked what all those buildings were for. When told that they were the buildings of the state university, she seemed surprised that there should be, in Nebraska, such a demand for education as to require so many and so large buildings.

The first senior social of the year was held at the residence of Miss Stella Kirker, Saturday eve, Nov. 21st. About thirty members of the class were present, and the evening was very well enjoyed by all. After choice refreshments, served by the hostess, music, cards, and other games furnished the amusements of the evening. It was near the last hour of the