EDITORIAL NOTES.

If THE change can be conveniently made, we suggest that the library be opened Saturday evenings instead of Friday evenings.

In another column of this paper, we publish a reply to an editorial that appeared in the last issue concerning the new course of instruction. Space forbids further notice of the subject in this issue.

The Scientific Club is to be congratulated for securing Professor Snow to deliver a lecture on "Evolution", Friday evening, December 18. The students should show their appreciation by attending en masse.

It is hoped that the students will take more pride in the appearance of the halls than they do. To be sure they present a more respectable appearance than of yore. The tobacco chewer has removed his abode from the halls to the campus, but the peanut crank is still on deck. There are a great many visitors who would have a better impression of the university if the halls were not strewn with bits of paper and nut shells.

WE WISH to call special attention to THE HESPERIAN election to be held immediately after the opening of school for the winter term. It may, perhaps, be out of place for any of the present board to make any suggestion concerning the succeeding board, but the following suggestion is made, and it may be taken for what it is worth. Our suggestion is that the girls have one or more representatives on the next board of editors. That such a change would be politic can not be disputed. That it would be an improvement is evident. Then why not make the change?

WE believe that the constitution of THE HESPERIAN Association should be changed so that the editorial staff may be elected at the beginning of the fall term instead of at the beginning of the winter term. This proposed change may not be approved by all the members of the association, but we believe that it is for the best interests of THE HESPERIAN that such a change should be made. According to the present method there are, practically, two editorial boards initiated each year, one at the beginning of the year, the other at the beginning of the fall term.
