In addition to their exercises in the gymnasium, the girls have organized a walking club. If you wish to see the tall girl, the short girl, the new girl, your old girl, the black-eyed girl, the blue-eyed girl, the jolly girl, the sober girl, the non-chewing-gum girl; then stand on the corner of Twelfth and R streets some evening just before the sun has kissed the western hill tops and your wish will be gratified. Note the difference in the carriage. Some have a hop and skip gait, some are stiff and sedate, others shuffle their feet along as if they were out for a holiday. Some lean forward, others lean back. Some keep eyes to the front, others look toward the ground. Some are shy, others are bold. A few wear glasses. Many have hats that entirely protect those in the rear. In fact, in this club you will find the American college girl in all her varieties. It is said that this club is seriously thinking of arming themselves with mops and brooms some evening and rout the whole battalion. Steps will be taken at once by the captains to prevent a surprise. There are other things we would like to say but remembering the awful fate that overtook the poor young man in junior themes we will subside.

The second hare and hound race took place Saturday, December 5. The hares, E. O. Jones and G. H. Maghee, left the gymnasium at 2:30 p. m. The hounds Shue, R. H. Johnson, M. M. Maghee, Tefft, Walter Pillsbury, and Gund, started about seven minutes later. Away they went over hill and dale, into creeks(Jones), over railroads, through fences, across fields, now south, now north, now east, now west, the pursued and the pursuer. The hares returned at 3:29½ p. m. having run as estimated about eight miles. Shue, the hound first to return, came in at 3:35 p. m., making a gain of 1½ minutes on the hares. The other hounds returned in the following order: Johnson, Maghee, Tefft, Pillsbury, Gund.

The work in physical training has now closed for this its first term. The instructor feels well satisfied with the progress that has been made and with the outlook for the next term. The students have shown thorough interest in the work, although thus far it has been of necessity very elementary in character, and lacking many attractive features of gymnasium training.

The work of the young men for the coming term may be classified under three headings: (1) prescribed exercise, based on the results of a physical examination; (2) general class drill; (3) miscellaneous exercises. The latter includes exercises on the bars, bowling, boxing, etc. Instruction in boxing will be given to a limited number. All young men entering the gymnasium will be required to take the prescribed exercise and the class drill, and may elect such other work as they choose, subject to the approval of the instructor.

The gymnasium is being much improved and by the time school opens next term it will be in much better shape than heretofore. A thirty foot horizontal ladder has recently been set up. Eleven sets of pulleys, arranged for different kinds of work, have been added. Fairbanks standard scales may be numbered among the late acquisitions. Also a lung tester or, more properly speaking, a spirometer, has been put in. The bath room is being fixed up, and next term the boys may soak as often as they see fit. Several bowls, a needle bath, and five shower baths will be put in. This arrangement will be quite satisfactory for some time and will replace the wooden pail and tin wash dish that have been donated by some loyal youth.

The following song was composed and sung at Crete immediately after the battle:

Way out in the meadow where the sand-burrs grow,
Listen to my tale of woe.
There was where we made a score of thirty-two
And left the champions feeling rather blue.
Too true, boo hoo,
Listen to my tale of woe!

CHORUS.

To the Omaha Bee they wrote one night,
And claimed their team was out of sight;
It was, too true, boo hoo,
Listen to my tale of woe!

Sweeney bucked the line, but he had no show,
Listen to my tale of woe.
Mains tried it, too, but he couldn't get through;
By a brilliant player he was tackled low.
Too true, boo hoo,
Listen to my tale of woe!

CHORUS.

To the Omaha Bee, etc.
They play foot ball because they love it so.
Listen to my tale of woe.
They claimed to be champions and we did too;
We started for the goal and we went right through.
Too true, boo hoo,
Listen to my tale of woe!

CHORUS.

To the Omaha Bee, etc.
