

DAILY DIALOGUES

OR, CLOAK ROOM CONVERSATION

AS OVERHARD BY THE TIRED LISTENER.

Place:—West end of University Hall, first floor. Time:—Five days in the week.

DIALOGUE I.

Gladys Lynn, Calypso Klingenspohr.

CALYPSO: "Quick, Gladys, get the other Gamma Gamma Lambda girls. What shall we do? There is that new girl that we want, Lavender Lathrop, cornered by a whole gang of those Delta Lambdas."

GLADYS: "Horrid things. They think they are just too smart for any use because they got more invitations to the next Psi party than Our Girls did. Never mind, Psychonia Stevens is going to give a party real soon, and she says she shant invite one of them."

CALYPSO: "Serve them just right. But we mustn't let them have Lavender or they will be worse than ever. I don't think much of their new initiates anyway. That Ethelberta Sidles is a perfect stick, and that Miss O'Hoolihan that they are so proud of getting and who refused——"

GLADYS: "Why Calypso! You know that's not so at all. It was all a mistake, and we never really wanted her. She was asked without the consent of the whole sorority. We wouldn't have her, the stuck-up thing, and so I told one of the Lambda girls, the other day, when they asked me to con——"

CALYPSO: "But Gladys, just look how they have fastend on to Lavender—five of them—as affectionate as if they had known her six semesters. What in the world shall we do? They were flocking around her like that at gymnasium yesterday."

GLADYS: "I'll go and ask her where the Latin lesson is, and try to bring her over here. We will have to get in our work on her awfully quick, and the sooner the better. Calypso, you write a nice hand, you will be the one to write the letter to her mother about a fraternity being 'a monument for good,' about the number of celebrated Gamma Gamma Lambda girls, including Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. Lease, Dr. Mary Walker, and the rest, and especially about the benefits of belonging to an 'exclusive circle' like the Gamma Gamma Lambda, whose members are the especial pets of the Profs. We will take her into chapel to-day and sit on both sides of her. Tomorrow we will all go and call on her. They say the Delta Lambdas have been to call on her already in a body, and, you know, I am the only one of us that has gone. How I wish Psychonia was here. She is our best talker. We must keep Lavender away from those Delta Lambdas."

DIALOGUE II.

Gladys Lynn, Calypso Klingenspohr, Lavender Lathrop.

GLADYS: "Come over here, and some of Our Girls will help you with your Latin. I do so want you to meet Calypso Klingenspohr. She is one of our smartest girls.—Calypso, dearest, this is Lavender Lathrop, that I was speaking to you about—I think Lavender is such a sweet name."

CALYPSO, (kissing her): "I'm just charmed to meet you, Lavender. I feel as if I had known you years and years already."

GLADYS: "Now if Circe was only here, Circe O'Rourke, you know. She is one of the Sweetest Girls in our fraternity. She is awfully popular, too—one of the Zeta boys walked home with her one day last week."

CALYPSO: "Yes, and you ought to see her new party dress, girlie. It's too lovely for anything. There isn't a dress to equal it in that whole Delta Lambda fraternity. They boasted se much about that Sidles girl's graduating dress—'so complete,' you know—red dress, fan, sash, slippers, stockings,
