

A CHEMICAL ROMANCE.

Said Atom to Molly Cule,
 "Will you unite with me?"
 And Molly Cule did quick retort,
 "There's no affinity."

Beneath electric light plant's shade
 Poor Atom hoped he'd meet her.
 But she eloped with a rascal Base,
 And her name is now Saltpetre.

HAWAII.

A statesman was puzzled to discover just why
 There wasn't some rule for pronouncing Hawaii.
 He varied the accents ten times each day,
 And each time he got a new kind of Hawaii.
 But finally found in an outburst of joy
 An accurate means of surmounting "Hawaii,"
 He found how Stevenson pronounced Ad-la-i
 And used the same plan in the case of Ha-wa-ii.—Ex.

CONTINUITY AND DIFFERENTIATION.

Whenever in America,
 A girl is asked to wed,
 She straightway says, "Go ask papa,"
 And coyly drops her head.
 And over in the Fatherland,
 Where flows the terraced Rhine,
 She whispers, while he clasps her hand,
 "Ich liebe dich allein."
 But up in Russia, where the snow
 Sweeps hissing thro' the firs,
 She simply murmurs soft and low,
 "Bhjushkst zwmstk rstk pbjunsj pjbirs."

It has often occurred to the alumni editor that a college paper would be much improved if contributions from alumni could be made to fill a column or two of each issue. The editor of this department may, by use of large quantities of gall in plying unsuspecting individuals with numberless questions, find out a few things concerning the whereabouts of some prep whose stay at the University may not have exceeded one or two terms. Concerning the larger part of our alumni, it is very difficult to obtain reliable information. Each alumnus, no doubt, is desirous of hearing from his former college
