

There has been a strong movement on foot to expel Sweeney from Doane College. However, the unpleasantness has somewhat blown over, and Mr. Sweeney will probably remain to finish his course.

The class of '96 had a spread at the Conservatory Friday evening, the 17th. Ye local editor, not being sufficiently urged, did not venture near; but, by those more fortunate, a pleasant evening is reported.

A party of twenty-one from the Swedish College at Wahoo visited the University the 24th. Especial attention was paid to the visitors in showing them the buildings and attractive features of the University. The party were well pleased with their visit.

Prof. and Mrs. Menzendorf, aided by a few members of the orchestra, furnished a number of delightful selections at the home of Rev. T. F. Stauffer, Monday evening the 26th, the occasion being the 30th anniversary of the marriage of Rev. and Mrs. Stauffer.

Oratorical contests are over for awhile, and the HESPERIAN local department will not be cut down to half its proper space. If you are one of the kickers who want more locals, please bear in mind that several have been thrown out each week, owing to contest reports.

As soon as the weather will permit, the batallion will be given a chance to display its skill at target practice. Each company will be given at least two days on the range. Also, when the weather is fine, the presentation of colors will take place some evening instead of dress parade.

It speaks well for the band, an aggregation of thirty active young bloods, that during their recent trip to Omaha (and it was on St. Patrick's day, too) not a single member conducted himself otherwise than in the most approved manner. The batallion should be proud to be associated with so exemplary a lot of musicians.

"Ethical Culture in the College and University" is the subject of a very interesting speech delivered by Chancellor Canfield before the National Educational Association at Saragota last summer. The speech is now printed in pamphlet form, and will prove instructive to any one who will give it his careful attention.

F. F. Tucker is now college agent for the "Oakview" Hotel, Chicago. This hotel was built by Nebraskans, is managed by Nebraskans, and will be occupied largely by Nebraskans during the World's Fair. The location of the hotel is acknowledged to be the best, as it is only seven hundred feet from the Sixtieth street entrance to the fair grounds. Those desiring comfortable quarters will do well to see Mr. Tucker at once. The rates are very reasonable.

There is a "Kroh" in a ba-ke-ree
And Stella is where she be;
There is a "Kroh" in a ba-ke-ree
And when I whistle "Aggie! Aggie!"
It won't be long 'till that "Kroh" I'll see.
For a ticket to Stella I'll buy for me
'Cause Stella is where she be—be she!

Lewis, corresponding secretary; W. D. Reed, treasurer; George Steiner, historian; C. C. Marlay, sargeant-at-arms..

In the Otago Daily Times (New Zealand) lately sent to the Chancellor by Dan H. Wheeler, of Omaha, are contained results of examinations at the New Zealand University. Twelve students, men and women, secured junior scholarships; twenty-seven passed the scholarship examinations creditably, and twenty-six candidates were successful in the solicitor's law examinations. The list of those successful in matriculation examinations is very long. Nearly all the names of the successful applicants for admission are pure English or Scotch. This is indeed a remarkable showing for a country only about a century old.

Mr. George Kennan, whose lecture for February 21st was postponed on account of his serious illness, will appear Wednesday night, April 5th, in the Lansing theatre, under the auspices of the Palladian Society. Mr. Kennan spoke last year on "An East Siberian Convict Mine. His lecture this time on "Russian Political Exiles" will be profusely illustrated with fine stereopticon views. Mr. Kennan's scholarly attainments, his faculty of close observation, and his unrivaled power of expression, enable him to present to the mind so vivid a picture of the state of affairs in
