EDITORIAL.

It is certain that the Dramatic Club, which will appear at the Funke Monday evening in "Open Gates" and "Chums" will be greeted by an enthusiastic University audience. No one who can possibly afford it should fail to be there; it will be the University event, par excellence, of the season.

THE movement toward withdrawal from the Oratorical Association is gathering strength every day. It is at last dawning upon the student body that we really are what we have been claiming to be—one of the leading universities in the country and as such should have no place in an association comprising a few little third-rate, 2x4 sectarian institutions, which have taken and will take every occasion presented to "do up the state." The wise course is to leave them to fight it out among themselves. Hurrah for the withdrawal!

THE arrest of a student Wednesday night for stealing mineral specimens was a step in the right direction. The endless pilfering which goes on about us cannot be cured by moral suasion or ethics, so let the law take its course. We are sorry for the sufferers, but they bring it upon themselves. The authorities owe it to the student body as a branch of society, that such violations of the law be promptly punished. Student are not better than other people, nor are they to be exempt from just punishment for wilful law breaking. Let the good work go on.
