

you know, but she has come more than half way this time and we will "whip um" or eat crow. If you can't go, get the score from THE HESPERIAN bulletin board at about 6:30 o'clock, and be ready to "jubilate."

The personnel of the team has changed somewhat since the opening of the season. Of course when a man takes a certain place for a game or two at the beginning of the season it does not signify that he is destined to hold that position forever. Every week of practical work gives the coach and captain a better idea of the man for the position, and changes must be expected at any time.

Shedd, who started at tackle, has apparently found a better "fit" at half. Harry Jones has had hardly the amount of experience a half needs, and will probably sub in the coming games with Missouri and Kansas, but he has speed and grit enough to keep him in the game.

Spooner has at last donned the shin-guard and moleskins and is putting up his old game at quarter, and tackling with his usual skill. His coming out drove Thorp and Packard from their contest over the place, but both, though light men, had the nerve and "headiness" to catch on at the ends.

King has been playing his place at half with ease, but if he finds it impossible to continue, Wiggins is in shape to carry the ball from behind the line, though he is needed at his old end.

The change at center will perhaps be most noticed. Keller was a new man, and considering, filled the place fairly well; but the position is a hard one to fill at first, and demands a man of experience. The old high school center, Milford, has been out this week, and "stands up" to the line in good shape. Keller is a good willing man, and would go a long ways towards filling a gap at guard should Wilson or Jones get badly "touched."

Dungan has apparently gotten a good grip at tackle, and is showing his training perhaps better than any other man on the team.

Shue has been off coaching the Falls City team since his return from Denver, but came back according to agreement last Monday night and reported for practice. He found a new man in his position, however, and when the line-up was made he was not called into the game. Of course the management does not have to explain all these things to the audience, yet when one is watching the building up of a team, these questions of why and wherefore insist on coming up.

Cameron has been pushed about rather promiscuously too, so it seems to a bystander, yet he is one of the first men on the grounds every night, and good-naturedly plays center or quarter as occasion demands. A man should not, in ideal working of affairs, be compelled to learn every position before being allowed at least half a chance at the position for which he is trying.

They Kept It Still.

When THE HESPERIAN was sounding its peals of merry wedding bells, it had no intention to ommit anyone. That this was done is owing entirely to the reticence of Mr. Hinds—we at this late date make amends for our neglect.

It was early in June that Mr. Chas. N. Hinds and Miss Josephine Walker became one. Our surprise will not prevent our heart felt congratulations. Mr. Hinds who is now posting in American History, was an active and popular member of the class of '95. Last year's cadets will remember him as first Lieut. Hinds of company B.

Miss Walker was in school three years ago—when she devoted most of her time to music. She is an estimable young lady and all her acquaintances will join with us in extending their best wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinds are both from Odell, Gage County, Nebraska. They are now keeping house at 454 north 16th street, while Mr. Hinds pursues his history work
