

and his wife her musical studies. THE HESPERIAN has heard several boys remark how high Charlie carries his head this fall—this explains it.

We clip the following:

The most interesting item of society news, says the Wymorean, is the reported marriage of Mr. Charles Hinds, only son of Hon. E. B. Hinds, and Miss Josephine Walker, oldest daughter of Wm. Walker, a prominent farmer living north of Odell. Romance is lent to the affair by the fact that the young people were married at Lincoln, Nebraska, where the young man is attending school, without the knowledge of either of their families, and were fairly started on the road of double blessedness before any of their numerous friends in the vicinity had any idea that such a proceeding was contemplated.

Alumni and Old Students.

The dear Journal seems to be having an awful time with the Williamses who are graduates of the University. T. A. Williams of Brookings, South Dakota, a young man who is making a name for himself among botanists, apparently impresses the reporters so strongly that they divide him into two people, one of whom lives in Dakota and the other in California, and one a graduate in '87 and the other in '90. The real Tom Williams belonged to the class of '89, one of the best classes ever graduated here, the only one we know of which keeps up its class organization has a yearly class letter and a reunion every five years. Mr. Williams classmates are justly proud of him. He was a strong student, a member of the Palladian society and his success, being based on hard work and real merit is an honor to his class and to his alma mater. If the Journal gets the rest of the Williams tribe mixed up we'll try to set them straight. They are all people with heads on them and likely to make places for themselves in this over-crowded world.
