Having received many inquiries, Ned: C. Abbott desires to say that he will conduct a Virgil class during the coming summer.

The Nebraskan very sagely reports that Professor Barbour "illustrated his talk to Phi Kappa Psi fraternity with about twenty drawings of fraternities." Pray what does such a drawing look like? Or is it one of the dark mysteries of frat cult.

E. Fleming, 1224 O street, practical watchmaker, jeweler and engraver. All repair work promptly attended to. Glasses fitted, correcting the most difficult sight.

There was a meeting of the County Agricultural Association last week in the Chapel. The Chancellor personally showed the delegates about the campus. He made a very neat speech in the book stack room explaining the end contemplated in allowing the students such free access to the books, and the use that was being made of the Library building.

Any student who expects to make up work at the Lincoln Normal University can save money by seeing the managers of this paper.

The following officers were elected for the second semester in the Political Economy Club: J. W. Searson, president; Miss Shively, vice-president; H. E. Wilson, secretary-treasurer; and B. W. Wilson, R. P. Teele and Miss Taylor, executive committee. It will be seen what an interest the co-eds are taking in Poly. Con. by the recognition they received at this election.

The thirteenth annual Chase and Wheeler oratorical contest of the Palladian Literary Society was held in the Chapel, Jan. 18th. An appreciative audience filled the lower floor. The orators were W. L. Williams S. W. Pinkerton, Sadie Smith, and June Smails. The orators showed ability and careful work, and were well received by the audience. First honors were awarded to Mr. Pinkerton, second to Miss Smails.

Last Saturday evening Prof. Davis entertained his calculus class at his pleasant home, Sixteenth and C streets. Every member of the class is willing to write Q. E. D. after the statement that Prof. and Mrs. Davis know how to make an evening pleasant. The class has been under Prof. Davis ever since he came to our University. The sixteen in it now finished the required math. this semester. The math. department is to be congratulated in securing and keeping so good a man at its head.

Helen Keller has returned to the New York school, where she made such progress last winter. Her enunciation is much improved and she is now being taught to sing. Placing her fingers on a singer's throat, she is now able to follow with her own voice notes covering two octaves. She sings synchronously with her own instructor, the only difference between her voice and a normal one being in the resonance. Miss Keller is looking forward to the time of her entrance into college. At the Christmas entertainment of the school, she recited the principal portions of "The Courtship of Miles Standish."—Ex.

My little sister with her eyes of brown,
And cheeks with rosy glow of childhood lit;
Lives all unknowing of the worldly town,
Back on the farm, and I am glad of it.

The violets her child-companions are,
And only modest friends, that chirp and flit
Among the forest boughs, make music, far
And near, for her, and I am glad of it.

The world's wild vagaries that skyward piled,
Build Vanity's high mount, are all unlit
To her brown eyes; she's but a nature's child,
Back on the farm—and I am glad of it.
