Dr. Sherman delivered his lecture, "Spiritual Law in the Natural World," at Plattsmouth on Sunday evening, March 8, under the auspices of the Cass county Teachers Association. The congregations of the three leading city churches united their evening services in the commodious Presbyterian church for the occasion. The professor was at his best, and as he warmed up to his subject earnestly, with quiet, penetrating enthusiasm, the large audience showed their appreciation by eager attention and by many subsequent expressions of approval. Plattsmouth accounts corroborate the prevalent University opinion that Dr. Sherman's physical proportions are not even a hint at his real intellectual and spiritual dimensions.
