SHE Went to Chapel.

One of the frivolous girls who amused the special student in chapel the other morning, had made up her mind to reform; so she selected a seat by her lonesome in the west gallery during the chapel exercises and commenced.

She was deeply impressed with the fervor of the devotions of the leading lords of creation. To tell the truth, she went into the gallery, hoping to see and not be seen; but soon she was made aware of her mistake.

Several boys in each row reviewed the gallery every two minutes. Thus the total time spent in gallery-ogling during the exercises must have made a sum of five or six hours. With this data; she tried to calculate how many generations would be necessary to involve a perfect rubber neck, but a hair rumpling contest between some boys in the northeast corner mixed up her figures. The hair rumpling passed over the heads of the four back rows as does a ripple over a mud-puddle. Good boys and bad boys, stubby-haired and long-haired boys suffered alike; and then some combed their hair with pocket-combs while others used their fingers as hair rakes.

Most all of the ordinary sitting up exercises were indulged in; but owing to the sitting posture, this was too hard work for all but one or two of the most agile.

The most amusing and popular game seems to be the pounding of the next man in front on the back. The victim never failed to give a heavenly smile; and after a moment's deep thought, would pass the blow on to his neighbor who in turn passed it on to the next.

During the Dean's prayer everything was so still that the frivolous girl could hear whispers from a dispute between four boys in the east gallery. They probably thought they were in a whispering gallery.

Five tow-headed youths with spectacles and note books wrote industriously with many frowns and wrinkles in their foreheads during the entire service; but there was no real disturbance until thirteen boys in the gallery tramped out during the hymn. Some of them had to climb over the backs of chairs to get out.

The frivolous girl began to realize, little by little, that she was gazing on a Pantheon; she was viewing the rights and ceremonies of many sects; and they were all enthusiasts after their own peculiar manner. She then realized as never before that this is a free country and that every man is free to worship according to the dictates of his own conscience.

ALMA.

The Y. M. C. A. evangelistic bands will have their pictures taken to send to the friends they made in the towns they worked in.

The U. B. D. C. has been obliged to refuse the challenge of the Crystal League Club of Omaha, owing to the fact that the U. B. D. C. can not officially debate with non-collegiate organizations. Individual members of the club will probably arrange a debate with the Crystal Club.
