Society Receptions.

Last Friday evening the three literary societies gave receptions to the new students. Each society hall was fairly well filled. While down town attractions kept a great many new students away, there were as many present as could well be accommodated in the society halls.

The first part of the evening was spent in making introductions and renewing acquaintances. After this, ices were served. This was a part of the evening's entertainment in which all were apparently ready to take part, and in which all seemed to enjoy themselves.

Few new students left the society halls last Friday evening without realizing the value of the fellowship of literary society members.

The gymnasium might as well close its doors this year so far as the good it can do in developing muscle and health; for the farmer boys who have been rustling with their enormous crops can put to shame the gymnasium developed lad. Just survey some of our new sky scrapers, will you?

Our program for '97

contemplates giving the people of Nebraska the best service to the east, west, north and south they have ever known.

It contemplates a continuance of our practice of landing passengers in Chicago, Peoria, St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver as quick or quicker than any other road running out of Lincoln and with no change of cars.

It includes improvements in equipment, track, motive power, bridges and depots.

During 1907 there will be more reasons and better reasons for taking the Burlington Route than ever before.
