The new chapel program is growing in popularity.

Is your name written there? If not, why don't you subscribe and have it written there?

The attendance at chapel would seem to indicate that there is really such a thing as university spirit.

Last week blank slips were sent out in the HESPERIAN addressed to new students. These should be filled out and signed, and then placed in the HESPERIAN mail box, or given to Mumford or Sayer. Stand up for the students' paper.

The HESPERIAN is now not only entitled to be called the students' paper but also the university paper. The efforts of the present management have been rewarded by recognition from the university authorities. They have ordered the HESPERIAN sent to the high schools throughout the state.

The management of the HESPERIAN desires to call the attention of faculty and students to our advertisers. We have no firm which is not reliable; we are very grateful to these advertisers in aiding us to issue a college paper which is a credit to the university, to both faculty and students. The way to reciprocate is to give them our support; we hope faculty and students will remember this when purchasing goods. If you desire to encourage the management of the best college paper ever published at the University, please mention the paper when you purchase from our advertisers.

The effort of the librarians, at the beginning of the year, to maintain due decorum in the library, receives the approbation of all conscientious students. The first of the school year is the time to begin. Let it be understood now that the library is a place for study; not for carousal or social functions. If this is done there will be little difficulty in maintaining order the rest of the year. The librarians should never again be so lenient with students as they were last year. The experience last spring shows that if the library is once allowed to become noisy it is next to impossible to restore proper decorum. The librarians may remember this with profit.

Football is the recognized college game. "Moralists" may talk and "pops" may legislate, yet college enthusiasm best manifests itself when a contest takes place on the gridiron. Institutions of learning gain much of their recognition through the victories of their football team. No matter how much certain people may regret this, it is a fact nevertheless. The university should have a strong team this year. Never before has so much interest manifested itself so early in the season. Eighteen or twenty men are out to practice each evening, and the presence of seventy-five or a hundred eager rooters tells the men that a place on the football team, this year, means something. So far the men who have come out to practice show up well. Captain Shedd and Manager Oury are feeling jubilant over the prospect. What is now most needed is the support of the student body. A good football team can not be put in the field without the expenditure of some money. If five or six hundred students will purchase season tickets the management will not have to go through the begging process which was necessitated last year. Show your scarlet and cream by investing $1.50 which entitles you to see six games of the best football ever played in the west.
