

The Little Spring.

This little spring bubbled up at the foot of a great big, bare mountain just at the entrance of Little Goose canon in the Big Horn mountains.

It was situated in a lonely spot and yet I venture to say, there was not a more popular place in that whole range of mountains. Here every day the stage coach stopped for lunch with its load of pleasure seekers. Here the mail man unharnessed his weary bronchos and fed. And here the lonely prospector loosened his packs, ate bacon and sipped his coffee made from the water of the spring. And at night when he lit his camp fire and lay down to sleep the people away down in the valley would see this flickering light and say, "Some one's camped at the spring tonight."

Mr. Wilton Whitney gave a lecture to the first year geology class Tuesday morning. Mr. Whitney is chief of the Bureau of soil culture at Washington.

There were over twenty-five men at football practice yesterday evening.

"Shorty" Turner appeared on the football field last Wednesday for the first time this season. Everyone interested in the success of our team was glad to see him out again, as his weight and strength make him a valuable man and one that is hard to replace.

The gymnasium classes were organized Monday. This department has received a great impetus this year as shown by the large number taking the work. Dr. Hastings is giving much of his time to class athletics. A great interest is being taken in this work also and each class is getting out some good material.

The athletic meeting held last week has had the effect of reviving the football spirit in the University to a considerable degree. Nearly all of the class teams are out practicing daily. The strongest of these seem to be the class of 1900. They have chosen an able captain, in the person of Mr. Griffith, and are preparing to land the plum when they line up with the other classes. The new Second Eleven are also doing some heavy work, under the management of Prof. Hastings, and will be able to reinforce the First team when necessary.

Alumni Notes.

Mr. Miller, B. L. '97, who is now living in Franklin, has been in Lincoln the past week.

Miss Mary Sargent '97, is to be married Thursday, Oct. 21, to Mr. Weese.

Mr. Jorgenson '97, is now in the employ of the B. & M. as a surveyor.

John Marshall '93, an old alumni editor of the HESPERIAN, is studying in this city.

O. R. Bowman '94, was in Lincoln Saturday and Sunday visiting relatives and friends.

Miss Nellie Compton '96, returned last week from a visit to New York and Pennsylvania, and resumed her work in the University library.

Miss Eva O'Sullivan '97, who is now teaching at Creighton, writes that she has a very pleasant school and enjoys the weekly visit of the HESPERIAN.

College of Law Notes.

Harry Oury is the latest addition to the class of '99.

C. L. Wilson '79, was a city visitor last week.

The Maxwell club is negotiating with the M. S. U. Law College for a joint debate.

There are two members of the '97 state legislature in the college. Messrs Grosvenor and Shull.

A. J. Weaver A. B. '95, L. L. B. '96 was a visitor this week.

N. K. Burch, a student of '95-6, re-entered the college this week. Mr. Burch expects to graduate with '98.

J. A. Singhaus and Chas. E. Cake are the librarians this year. Mr. Cake is a graduate of Monmouth College, N. H.

Nearly all the members of the junior class are taking elementary education. Mrs. Manning conducts special classes for the lawyers.

The registration continues to increase. This makes the lawyers more ardent than ever in the belief that the college of law is an exceedingly important part of the University.

At the Maxwell club meeting Saturday evening Messrs. Grosvenor and Gibson will urge the justice and equity of the deficiency judgment act passed by the '97 legislature; Messrs Kemp and Lyonds will argue from another standpoint.

The Maxwell club met for the first time Saturday evening. There was a large attendance and those present were evidently there for the good they expected to get out of debating club work; not for mirth and "scraps." After some difficulty in admitting new members the following officers were elected for the first term: J. L. Wallace, president; C. C. Hudley, vice president; Miss Stull, secretary; D. W. Lamb, critic and Col. John Martin Tucker, sergeant-at-arms.
