

Didn't We Twist the Tigers Tail!!

WELL I GUESS, YES.

Old Mizzery, 'twas eas'ly done;

You got just nit—we forty one.

After all, those Missouri 'tigers' were not so very ferocious. As football players they were clearly outclassed by Nebraska's sturdy 'leven. But once during the game did they stand the least show of scoring. This was during the first part of the second half when a fumble by Cowgill allowed the Missourians to advance the pig skin to Nebraska's ten yard line. While the so-called 'tigers' made nit, Nebraska ran the score up to forty-one.

The bug-eaters won the toss and took the south goal. Howard kicked low for fifteen yards. The ball was returned five yards but Missouri secured it on a fumble. After twice failing to make gains Holman punted five yards and again the tigers fell on the ball. Missouri lost seven yards in the next three plays and Nebraska took the ball. Shedd went through center for five yards. Two gains, of about six yards each, followed. Benedict went around the end for four yards, Shedd through the center for eight and Hayward for six. A three yard gain followed and the ball was on Missouri's 20-yard line. Here the wary Benedict went through the tigers for a twenty yard run and a touch down. Shedd kicked an easy goal. Time, 4:30; score, 6-0.

Missouri kicked off twenty yards. Pearse returned the ball five yards and a gain of five yards followed, when Montgomery received a slight wound on the head. The ball was again shoved through the tiger's line for four yards. Montgomery carried it through center for a seven yard gain. Gains of three and five yards followed. Benedict went around the end for ten yard; Pearse through the line for eight. Pearse carried the ball for another slight gain. Hayward went through the line for six yards. Rapid gains followed. Benedict pushed his way forward for four yards, Montgomery for five and Shedd three. Shedd received slight injuries in trying to go through the tiger's center. Two more short gains were made, then Pearce shoved the pig skin over the line for a touch down. Shedd kicked another easy goal. Time 12:30; score, 12-0.

Missouri kicked off thirty yards; Wiggins returned ten. Cowgill punted twenty-five yards. Shepherd gained ten yards for Missouri. Turner stopped the agile Shepherd, but came out a little worse for the skirmish. Nebraska took the ball on downs. After two attempts to make gains Cowgill punted ten yards. Wiggins prevented the Missourians from making any return by his excellent tackle. After two short gains Missouri lost seven yards and the ball on a fumble. Benedict went around the left end for twenty yards. Two short gains followed, when Shedd made a hole through the tiger's center for a ten yard gain. Hayward made his way for seven yards, Montgomery for five and Hayward six. The ball was less than a yard from Missouri's goal line. The next time it went over and Shedd kicked goal. Score 18-0.

Missouri kicked off twenty-eight yards, but Hayward returned the pig skin eight yards. Benedict made one of his end runs for nearly twenty-five yards. Montgomery went around the right for a similar gain. Shedd gained ten yards but fumbled. Wiggins recovered the ball and gained eight more. Several short gains followed. Montgomery took the ball, was tackled by Jones, and fell squarely on his head. Williams was substituted. After several slight gains Nebraska lost the ball on a fumble. Missouri tried twice with no gains. Holman punted sixteen yards and Perry fell on the ball. After several small gains the bug eaters got the ball on a fumble. Shedd, Williams and Benedict pushed the pig skin through the line for large gains. Shedd fumbled the ball within two yards of goal line. Cramer got it with an open field but stumbled after a gain of eight yards. Harris gained twenty yards in a criss-cross play. Hayward stopped Harris by a clever tackle; Missouri made slight advances. Holman punted. Nebraska made steady gains for thirty yards. Cowgill repeated the Wesleyan antic by kicking goal from the 25-yard line. Time was called. Score 23-0.

In the second half Nebraska kicked off thirty-five yards. Holman punted for twenty yards. Several short gains were made. Williams made a large gain by an end run. Benedict dodged around left end, taking the ball
