

Thanksgiving!

Again, please, Kansas!

Save your Thanksgivings until after the Iowa game, then do it all at once—Your bleachers, Oury, are smoke if we win.

The Co-op is selling stationary at a very low figure.

James Whitcomb Riley

J. Whitcomb Riley,

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY, the Hoosier Poet will read from his own works and impersonate his own characters, at the Lansing, Monday night, November 22nd. Mr. Riley is one of the few great American poets who are now living. His books of verse have been read all over the English speaking world; but in very few places has an opportunity been given of hearing him read his own writings. People who know Mr. Riley best say that his impersonating is as good as his verse and he missed one calling that he was well fitted for when he did not become an actor. The students of the State University should not miss this very exceptional opportunity of seeing Mr. Riley. The regular sale of seats begins at the Lansing box office Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Prices 75c and $1.00. Gallery 50c.

At the Lansing.
