

The reminiscences of University life in the late 70's by Miss Ellen Smith, given before the Old Settlers Association, were decidedly interesting. Miss Smith has been here guarding credits, frowning on 'fresh' upstarts and coaching faculty-members for full twenty years. Chancellors and Acting-Chancellors have come and gone; faculties have formed and vanished; classes have entered, and wrangled and been graduated; buildings have been erected; trees have grown green and old; a hedge fence has given place to one of iron; departments have been added; numbers have increased from 132 to near 2,000—and Miss Ellen Smith is still with us—The one fixture of the University structure, the one permanent abiding member of the student organism. Her place is one of high honor in all ways. All hail to the Registrar! May she stay another twenty!

College of Law Notes.

Jingles.

"A Hot Time" is waning. The public heave a sigh of relief and thank Fate that the much used and much abused carol is going. Now and then some new-very new-young chap rounds his lips and sends it forth to chafe ones ears, but the species is nearly extinct. He must be very verdant or else exceeding young. But what a lot of company the daring jingle has. Away back there we hear the notes of 'Comrades,' then the strains of 'Annie Rooney,' later we consigned to everlasting oblivion such tender gems as 'After the Ball' and 'Two Little Girls in Blue. And now 'A

Hot Time' is vanishing. What a lot of iconoclastic beings we are! We love a thing just for 'a day' without the 'forever' and then the rag heap, the scrap bag, or the measureless region of 'forgets' becomes its place of doom. Some jaunty jingle, easily learned and as easily forgotten, suits the ear and then the foolish maiden and the foppish boy, the ancient matron and the angelic furnace-tender all catch up the strain and the air vibrates with the notes. But the 'Hot Time' is hardly warm any more; it is getting cold, almost icy. It is frigid—and soon we shall add to the pleasant 'going' the happy 'gone.'

Among the Greeks.

Miss Ura Kelly, Delta Gama, of Omaha, is visiting Blanch Garten.

Miss Gertrude Wright of Schuyler, Neb., is spending the week with the Pi Beta Phis.

J. C. Hutchinson of Muskegan, Ia., was a visitor at the Phi Kappa Psi house this week.

Fred Defrane, S. A. E., Law '98 has been compelled to leave school owing to trouble with his eyes.

Rob't Jinkins, Kappa Sigma '00 expects to leave in about two weeks to enter the Colorado state school of mines.

The approaching examinations have caused great quiet among the Greeks and they will probably lie dormant until next semester.

The Beta Theta Pi boys have decided to do some literary work at their chapter house, and will devote one evening a week to debate and literary work. It is their intention to have an alumnus speak at these programs.

The active and alumni members of the local chapter of Sigma Chi celebrated their fifteenth anniversary, Wednesday, by initiating into their fraternity H. D. Landis and E. W. Foster.
