

The debaters said nothing the first time, as there was a new secretary in the executive office.

The officials have always willingly granted every request made at the office for accommodations for debates, but the fumble always comes in failing to have the orders executed. We know that mistakes must happen with so much business in an executive office, but the recent oratorical contestants in the chapel had a short experience with sudden darkness and it is hoped that every precaution will be taken to have such accidents prevented in the future.

The only thing needed is the presence of one of the janitors or a watchman who knows how to manipulate the gas jets, and will turn them on before the electric light goes out. This we believe will be done, and the possibility of some good debater being knocked out will be removed.

Students will do well to remember that Westerfield is yet in business, at his stand, 117 North 13th. Latest styles in hair cut.

Many are asking the question now-a-days: "What has become of the senior canes?" But no one seems to know, no, not even the seniors.
