

THE HESPERIAN

BIXBY'S RETREAT.

And once more the droning voice of the bench-worker may be heard on the campus.

If you are short and stout and plump, wear short skirts by all means. Don't forget to prance through the library; this will cause the boys to rubber-neck.

If you are in Omaha and the prayer suits you, don't forget to applaud. People may think you are under the influence of the foaming Lager but that makes no difference.

Jocularious Searson has shaved the whiskers from a stale, unprofitable, and antiquated joke. As a result, 2x4 grins, have several times rewarded his painstaking, care and discrimination.

Commencement draweth on apace and Pugh's visage is one vast, expansive grin. C. C. thinks of going on the Chicago Board of Trade. He will speculate exclusively in Theatre Options.

In our last letter, we stated that a certain gentleman's calves were all golf socks. We were mistaken. The person in question uses cotton wadding. We are sorry; our life is one, long scrimmage after truth.

Several lofty themes are pigeon-holed for discussion in our next letter. Among them are, Kuhlman's Theatre Box, Tuckers Dog-trot, Egge's Floral Contributions, etc. These and other subjects, we will Roast with Burning words.

The soldier and the orator are men akin. Like the Cuban campaigner, a majority of the sixteen debaters were in frantic haste to tell how it happened. After the smoke of the conflict has cleared away, some jaws are still working. The time for effective talking is past. Waste no golden moments in ruff words. Besides it is very rude to cuss the judges.

So Long, Bix.
