

two years, and his published reports are among the classics of the state. He has delved long and deeply into railroad economics, and has published at least one book that is a standard work in this line. His "Political Economy" is one of the best books on the subject published in late years, and is used in many of the universities of the country as a text book.

While first of all a student of political economy and society, Professor Hadley is by no means a one-sided man. There is hardly a man at Yale who could have been put above him in the matter of wide sympathies with all branches of study. He is an all-round man in the widest sense of the term, and can be relied upon to give each department at Yale its full complement of power and effectiveness. While he is not pre-eminently a social man, he is most approachable. For several years he has been a widely invited speaker at Yale banquets all over the country, and his brilliant wit at these affairs has given him a widespread reputation, second only to that of his predecessor, President Dwight.

Professor Hadley is one of the few men in any college in the east who has the good fortune to be both a profound scholar and a man of affairs, a book man and a lover of bracing out-of-door sport, a pedagogue and a brilliant public speaker. He is without doubt the most successful of Yale professors of the generation. He will be none the less a successful president because he has been a successful professor.—Edwin Oviatt in the Criterion.

"Why did you let him go?"

"He crossed his heart and body that he would bring me his fat little brother tomorrow."—New York Journal.

Another Tip.

Hubby—Upon my life, Nellie, if you are so provoking, my brain'll be turned.

Wifie—Oh, don't get excited, dear! It'll never be worth turning.—Ally Sloper.

That Irishmen, as well as other people, have been guilty of bulls I do not seek to deny; even the other day I heard one Micky Martin complaining that, as he had not been allowed his natural share of sleep recently, he was going to square matters by sleeping a whole week some day.

THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

.....is opposite the Campus. Students contemplating the study of music, and those who have friends desirous of information concerning the advantages offered, are cordially invited to visit the school and obtain an illustrated Catalogue. You can enter at any time.....

WILLARD KIMBALL DIRECTOR.

ESTABLISHED 1870

The A. M. Davis Co.

Wholesale and Retail

Furniture, Carpets And Draperies

1112 and 1114 O Street, Lincoln, Neb.

Not a Hitch

Don't allow the miserable necessity of stopping to dip, dip, dip, make a hitch in the written expression of your thought, and mar your best efforts—

IT ISN'T A NECESSITY

with

Waterman's Ideal

The Fountain of Pen Satisfaction.

75

You can go from Start to Finish, Without a
Hitch and Without a Dip.

75

IT IS THE

Perfect Writing Instrument

ALWAYS ALL WRITE
WRITE STRAIGHT ALONG

75

* AT ALL DEALERS *

Or full particulars from the

L. E. WATERMAN CO.

Largest Manufacturers of Fountain Pens
In the World

157-159 Broadway.

NEW YORK.

Rambler... Bicycles...

The Twenty Year Old Wheel. The
Uni is Full of Them. XXXXXX

GUTHRIE SELLS THEM
At 1540 "O" Street.