HISTORICAL SOCIETY NOTES.

Several years ago a flag was donated to the Nebraska State Teachers' association. It was then left at the Nebraska historical library. One day during the session of the association in this city this week the teachers took the flag to their meeting at the Lincoln hotel. It will likely be present at every annual meeting hereafter.

During the past week five bound volumes of the Lincoln Courier, from 1893 to 1897, inclusive, have been added to the historical library.

J. Barrett is at work making maps of the old stage routes used in this state from 1845-69. He has some of the old settlers in different counties tracing these now nearly obliterated routes. These old routes run through pastures, farms and villages. So many are plowed up as to make this a very difficult task. The map when finished will prove quite an interesting piece of early Nebraska history.

On going into the historical library one will be surprised to see how many newspapers are kept on file here. There are 500 Nebraska papers alone, besides a number from neighboring states. Mr. Barrett has been collecting duplicate copies for several years. He has 15,000 of these arranged so as to be easily accessible. He has been drawing on these to complete the files of Nebraska newspapers. Within the next two years he will have 500 volumes bound. Those already bound are placed in the fireproof vault, which will hold 1,500 volumes. Mr. Barrett is desirous of getting all the files of Nebraska papers possible. They will be safer here than being stored away in some attic. He especially desires a complete file of the Nebraska papers. The only copy of volume one of the Hesperian which he has is No. 1. He only has one number of volume two. During the '70s he has some, and nearly all during the '80s.

This week Mr. Barrett is packing a box of Nebraska reports to be sent to Columbia college, New York City. Another box is being prepared for the New York City library.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The University of Minnesota reports a membership of about three hundred and eighty. The University of Nebraska has two hundred. There is too much difference considering the relative size and merit of the two institutions.

Those students who are making a collection of souvenirs use good taste in their selections. Several silver spoons were taken the night of the reception. They make nice keepsakes, but it is hard on association finances to replace them. Any one taking the spoons by accident should return them to the Y. M. C. A. rooms at once.

The Y. M. C. A. rooms have never been so largely attended as they are at the present time. The telephone brings a large number and the rooms are becoming indispensable in the university.

President J. J. King will soon be out again after a slight attack of fever. J. W. Hollister is also threatened with fever.

Great plans are being made for the address by Dr. Rowlands next Sunday upon "The Religion of the Next Century." In order that the crowd may be accommodated the meeting will be held in the chapel. A lively song service with a chorus will be one of the features.

The social committee has already begun to plan for the reception that will be given to the law students in the near future. The success which marked this reception one year ago has not been forgotten. An attempt will be made to make it a grand success.

The association will soon begin a special effort to enlarge its membership. The work as now carried on merits the support and sympathy of all young men, regardless of their affiliations with other organizations. Do not wait to be coaxed, but join when you are solicited. J. S. MOORE.

A LOVER'S DILEMMA.

If I felt sure our love were done,
I'd burn her letters, one by one;
But she is fickle and, alack!
'Twould work me woe should she come back.

HIS TRACKLESS LAIR.

"Where do you suppose that fugitive from justice hid himself?"
"In Alaska?"
"No; we collared him after three weeks' search through a department store."
