STANFORD LETTER.

Stanford University, Cal., Oct. 6, 1900.—Nebraskan-Hesperian — Sirs: Your paper reached me a few days ago and it is needless to say that I am much pleased with it. Your registration number was attractive and well gotten up. I could easily imagine myself mingling with the throng of students as they moved from table to table and from professor to professor fixing up their recitation schedules. A different system of registration prevails here at Stanford. Each student has a major and a minor study and consequently a major and minor professor. It is the business of the professor to assist the student in the preparation of his study card, which is afterward filled out and filed with the registrar and the necessary fees paid.

Graduates from accredited institutions are permitted to take all the first year subjects in law; and as their subjects count toward graduation and the degree of A. B., a student may consider himself either a graduate student or a senior. Personally, I have identified myself with the latter aggregation and expect to be in line for a sheepskin next June. A thesis of three thousand words or more will do the business.

The law department here is somewhat in its infancy yet, but it is making rapid strides to the front. The professors without exception are either Harvard or Columbia. Instruction is given by means of the Case system which was originated by Prof. Langdell of Harvard and is followed in most of the first class law schools of this country.

On entering the university grounds, one is immediately struck by the magnificent scale on which things are done here. The buildings are all of stone and are finished in hard woods of various kinds. The new chapel which will be completed next spring is an imposing structure and will cost over one million dollars.

The dormitory system prevails here to a great extent. Encina Hall is the home of about 300 men. The co-eds live in Fable Hall which will accommodate about 150 students. Besides these halls there are a number of private student enterprises in and about the campus. Life in Encina Hall is about like that of any dormitory where a number of students are gathered together.

While the juniors and seniors keep up the class spirit in the U. of N., the Freshes and Sophs do it here. The first four nights were made hideous by the yells of the unlucky Freshies as they were plunged into the cold water of the Encina bath tub. The "babies" have become organized now and are repaying their big brothers with interest. They had a scrap on the campus a week ago that lasted nearly all night and was only stopped by the interference of the night watchman.

Stag parties in the club room are all the go now. An informal hop will be given in honor of the university girls next Saturday evening. These parties are given one or two in each semester.

Athletics are given a prominent place in student affairs. Football with Coach Yost at the head is all the go now. Yost is very popular here and has the confidence of the students. The faculty from the president down to the lowest assistant will accompany the team to San Francisco on Thanksgiving day, when we meet the University of California on their home grounds. For fear of wearying you, I must close.

With best wishes for your success, I am, sincerely,

JNO. J. PLOWHEAD.
