The Paper will be out EARLY next Monday morning. Full account of the game

"Root Hog or Die."

Remember, while there is life there is hope.

Nebraska expects every man to do his duty.

Don't run up and down the side lines but stand still and root, and keep on rooting.

Organize in groups. Megaphones will be distributed free at the gate. Make good use of them.

Don't waste your voice in scattered yelling. It won't be heard. Remember Minnesota's rooting organization is perfect.

We wish to emphasize again the necessity for displaying the university colors at the game. The bleachers ought to be a perfect mass of scarlet and cream. Ribbons, pennant, and crysanthemums ought to be everywhere.

Commandant Brown is working hard to perfect organization for rooting in the battalion and he deserves great praise for his efforts. But this is only a starter. Every person should constitute himself a committee of one to see that every one comes out to yell practice. Minnesota expects to win in football, yelling and music. Let us show her some true Nebraska spirit.

THE SOMBERO.

Every other year the Junior class of the State University of Nebraska publishes a book called the "Sombero." It generally consists of jokes, roasts, and cartoons of the faculty and students.

This year's annual, more than ever before, was brought very impressively before the University by the unfortunate wrangling of the Sophomore class of last year. Visions of silver-tongued orators, flying Robert's Rules of Order, the trembling seventh vice president and the ragings of the mighty sergeant-at-arms are still fresh in our minds.

For a time all was dark and gloomy and the chance of getting out a book was one in a thousand. After three months of vacation the matter cooled down to a more reasonable point and after many conferences a compromise was agreed upon and a permanent organization affected with A. K. Barnes in the chair.

This new organization went to work at once and after successfully bridging the divide are now ready to open a vigorous campaign. At present some of the members are trembling for their heads as the Registrar has been appointed an investigating committee of one to see that all are really what they claim to be—Juniors. Although late in getting started the committee is doing splendid work. Advertisements, which go a long way toward footing up the bill, are daily being secured by the business managers and the editors are ever ready to produce the pad and pencil.

A great responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the managers and editors. Advertisements must be secured, arrangements made for publishing, and above all the engravings besides the editorials, stories, jokes, etc. Now as this book is connected with the University and its success or failure reflects upon the college, all of the students, as well as the faculty, should extend a helping hand. Everyone should consider it his duty to hand in any event of importance or in fact any material fit for such a book. The editors will soon be given their various departments to "write up" but many things will most naturally escape them. The societies, clubs and departments should consider it a duty to be ready to aid in various ways and if everyone puts his shoulder to the wheel the "Sombrero" of nineteen hundred and one will stand for years to come as the best ever published.

A COMMUNICATION.

To the Nebraskan-Hesperian:
In the last issue of the Nebraskan-Hesperian it was stated that I am a candidate for the position of physical director in the University of Nebraska. The statement was unauthorized. No application oral or written had been made by me. The paper which has been circulated in my favor, I understand, does not contemplate that end in its statement, nevertheless the circulation of this paper was opposed by me from the beginning, request for its withdrawal was made, and I had supposed that it did not exist.

While I appreciate the spirit which prompted this expression of confidence in me yet I am distinctly not a candidate for the position.

ERNEST E. HASTINGS.

A SUTTON CLUB.

To the Nebraskan-Hesperian:
Another long felt want has been filled and another organization launched. The Sutton club is not to perpetuate the memory of H. O. Sutton, but consists of members from Sutton, and aims to help its members and interest others at home in university life. There are now eleven members, which is doing pretty well, considering the fact that when Gene Grice came three years ago, he was the only representative. The club is proud of some of its members and ashamed of the records of none of them. Bender's record on the football team is one that gives the members pride. The other members are Bonekemper, Buck, Cronin, president of '03, Fleming, Park, Swanson, and Misses Burlington, Carney, Fleming, and Hoerger.
