THE REGENTS' MEETING

Tuition Fee Decided Upon—Changes in the Faculty for Next Year—Apportionment of Funds for Coming Biennium.

The Board of Regents met in regular session on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. The apportionment of the university appropriation for the next biennium was determined. It was decided to impose emergency fees to meet in part the deficiency due to the governor's veto. These fees are $3 per semester for all students in the college of Letters, the Industrial school and the graduate school. There will also be a tuition fee of $10 per semester for all students in the college who are non-residents of the state. It is estimated that these fees will amount to $15,000 annually. The annual expense budget was approved after a cut of $3,000 had been made to provide for possible additional instructors.

From the emergency fund $3,500 will be used to maintain the property on the State farm and make necessary additions and $2,500 will be devoted to the library.

Dean Sherman was made senior dean and dean of the graduate school. Miss Barr was given the title of adjunct professor of physical education. Miss Conklin was appointed acting head of the department of romance languages.

Appropriate resolutions of regret at the departure of Dean Edgren were passed. He donated the university an oil printing, the subject being "Stockholm." It is a fine work of art. Resolutions of thanks were passed.

Judge Munger, who was to give lectures before the college of law on federal practice, found that his duties as judge prevented his delivering the lectures. J. H. McIntosh of Omaha was substituted in his place.

Leaves of absence for one year were given to Dr. John White, and to Harry G. Shedd, university publisher and instructor in English. Both will study abroad. The absence of Mr. Shedd from the executive office will make Mr. Clark chief clerk of that office.

Prof. A. E. Davisson, who has held the title of professor of agricultural education and director of the school of agriculture, was given the title principal of the school of agriculture and professor of economics therein.

Chancellor Andrews was given a leave of absence during July and August to permit him to deliver lectures at the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois.

On petition, the use of the armory was granted to the junior class for a reception to be tendered the senior class.

The matter of securing additional accommodations in the mechanic arts building for the school of domestic science, mechanical drawing and photography was referred to the executive committee with power to act, as was the matter of securing accommodations at some of the state university buildings for the traveling library commission.

It was ordered by the board that no action shall be taken by any faculty tending to increase the difficulty of entering the university without the ex-

PLICIT approval of the board of regents. The tendency among various faculties is to restrict the admission to the university and the board took this action so that all movements in this direction should pass their hands before going into effect.

A department of dairy husbandry was established with A. L. Haecker as adjunct professor in charge.

Professor Ross was given the title of professor of sociology and Professor Taylor was given the title of professor of political economy and public finance.

A petition was received from the law college petitioning the board to establish a post graduate school of law. The proposition was favored by the members of the board, but they said they were obliged to defer action because of the present lack of funds.

THE GRADUATE CLUB.

The officers of the Graduate Club are completing the arrangements for publishing the second number of the Graduate Bulletin. The faculty and graduate students generally are supporting enthusiastically this enterprise, and a creditable publication is therefore assured.

The treasurer of the club is experiencing some difficulty in not finding the members "at home." In order to facilitate the work and to obviate the necessity of his calling on individuals, sub-treasuries have been established in many of the departments and some person therein authorized to receive subscriptions. Every member of the faculty and every graduate student will want, of course, a copy of the Bulletin. It will facilitate matters very materially if those who have not already subscribed will leave their names and their money with some one of the following assistant treasurers:

R. W. Thatcher, for agriculture and experiment station; G. G. Hedgcock, botany; R. S. Hiltner, chemistry; Mattie Allen, education; R. C. Lansing, English literature; E. F. Piper, English; C. Fisher, geology; J. L. Kind, Germanic languages; Eugenie Mackin, Greek; L. E. Aylsworth, American history; C. H. Meier, European history; Eva M. McCune, Latin; C. C. Engberg, mathematics and engineering department; F. H. Kuhlman, philosophy; C. A. Skinner, physics; J. J. Ledwith, political economy; J. L. Gerig, romance languages; H. W. Graybill, zoology; Virginia Hoffman, administrative offices; Edith Long, Lincoln high school.

The following are the officers of the club for the present year: President, Dr. Robert E. Moritz; secretary, Eugenie Mackin; treasurer, R. S. Hiltner; chairman committee on publications, Dr. A. L. Candy.

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

University First Team Secures the Prize—Consolation Prize Goes to Second Team—Game Full of Snap and Clever Plays.

Lincoln has had a rare treat, a novelty, in the manner of a girls' basketball tournament. This is the first time in the history of basketball in Nebraska that teams from various high schools have met the University of Nebraska aggregation. That much interest was manifest in the tournament was evidenced by the large crowd assembled at Memorial Hall last Friday evening.

Omaha, Wahoo and Lincoln high schools had contributed teams for the contest, and their various admirers filled the hall with yells of all kinds and descriptions—large and small, high and low, long and short, and otherwise.

Wahoo's small delegation was very prominent with their short, snappy yelps, while Omaha was equally noticeable with the old familiar "Omaha high school," which we are accustomed to hear on the campus about football season. Lincoln, of course, had her many friends from about town who of skill won. In less than four minutes' play Nebraska had a goal and another one in two minutes more. All this time the ball was in Nebraska territory. Then came a succession of fouls wherein Wahoo showed her skill in throwing goals from fouls. Here she made three points in as many minutes. Nebraska's small forward was struck in the eye and called for time. Her colleagues came to the rescue in true girl fashion and after a few moments the game was resumed. Nebraska played better now and threw two goals in quick succession. About this time Minnie Guile and Captain Miller began their star playing, throwing three goals before Wahoo could find the ball. The latter team was being outplayed on all sides, but not because they lacked vigor and vim. Little Theresa St. Martin, who is only half as tall as Blanche Emmons, was playing fast and furious and secured the ball every time it hit the floor, but Nebraska seldom let the ball get out of their hands. Just before the end of the first half Wahoo threw a goal. Score, Nebraska 18, Wahoo 5.

The second half was a repetition of the first. Nebraska played fast, and Kathryn St. Martin for Wahoo was improving. Several fouls were made, in which Nebraska had the advantage. The final score: Nebraska first team 27, Wahoo 10.

The next game was between Lincoln high school and the second team from the university. The teams were about evenly matched and an exciting contest followed. The ball started in Lincoln's territory but the little high school girls were unable to play fair and made four fouls without intermission. Nebraska gained on two of these. Nebraska also fouled twice, with no gain for Lincoln. Then the high school girls threw a goal and the crowd went wild.

Lincoln was playing good ball. Pearl Archibald and little Captain King were everywhere at once, and the guards kept the ball well out of Nebraska's territory. After a short rest, Lincoln threw two goals and Nebraska one. This ended the first half.

In the second half Edith Shaw played good ball, and Mabel Guile was improving. Lincoln got one goal and the rest of the game consisted of fast playing and fouls.

Final score: Lincoln high school 11, second team 6.

The next and last game was between Omaha high school and the university first team. The teams were evenly matched—Omaha's tall guard being invincible. In the first half both teams fouled considerably, but Omaha threw one goal. Both teams played very fast, the ball being in Nebraska's territory most of the time. In the second half Nebraska had things her own way and succeeded in throwing four goals. Nebraska's team work was excellent, each player doing her part well.

The final score: Nebraska 8, Omaha high school 5.

THE FINALS.

The finals were played Saturday afternoon. Omaha and Wahoo played first and this game resulted in victory for the former. The score was 9 to 3. The Wahoo girls played a lively game from start to finish, but the great disadvantage they played under on account of the height of their opponents caused their defeat.

The University of Nebraska

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

COME ONE! COME ALL!

were very enthusiastic with expectations of winning everything in sight, but the "U-u-ni-ver-ver-sity" was heard above all other yells, demonstrating the fact that Nebraska was well represented. Of the entire crowd, numbering perhaps 600, fully one-half were supporting the two teams from the university.

Great pains had been taken by the management to have all things in order and not a hitch occurred in the whole proceedings. Ushers, all girls, for this entertainment was conspicuous because of its femininity, conducted the audience to seats arranged in the gallery and on the outskirts of the main floor. Prominent among the guests were the following patronesses: Mesdames W. J. Bryan, L. C. Richards, A. S. Tibbets, C. H. Gere, J. H. McMurtry, A. S. Raymond, W. B. Ogden and Miss Harris.

The officials were Miss Susan Pillsbury, Wahoo; Miss Anne Spurck, Lincoln high school; Miss Helen Woodward, Omaha; Miss Anne Barr and Miss Louise Pound, university.

By request of Nebraska, Mr. Wilbur Anderson refereed the game between Lincoln and the university.

The battle opened with Wahoo and the first team of Nebraska in the field. Here one was especially struck with the advantage Nebraska had in size. The Wahoo girls were short and stout, with plenty of vim and endurance; Nebraska was tall, fast and equally determined. But size with an abundance
