KANSAS DEFEATED.

Teams Play Amid Clouds of Driving Dust—Score 14 to 17—A Large Increase in Attendance in Spite of Weather.

Kansas offered herself as a victim to our fast college ball team last Friday and was defeated by a score of 17 to 14. The day was a poor one both for spectator and player. A strong south wind, almost a gale, blew clouds of dust across the diamond, making accurate play most difficult, as the error column will show.

The pitchers had much to contend with, facing a strong wind. The batters, as the number of hits shows, took advantage and made the twirlers' records look like thirty cents. Townsend, however, had the best of it, fanning eleven Jay Hawkers and except for the almost fatal sixth inning, only scattered hits were made off him. Hall also pitched a pretty game, although by no means fanning so many Nebraskans as Townsend did Kansans. Hall is a likely youth, and with ordinary batters would prove most effective.

Finley caught for Nebraska and put up one of the nerviest games on the campus. Despite the dust he did not let a ball pass and made two or three pretty jumps after some wild ones. In the sixth inning he got too close to a Kansas batter and was accidentally knocked down by a swing of the Jay Hawker's bat. Finley, however, pluckily stayed in the game after a couple of minutes' rest.

The trouble started with Kansas at bat. White, their good looking third baseman, picked up a young tree, walked over to the plate, spat upon his hands, rubbed them in the dirt, and it De Putron, who was tired of standing on third in the hot wind, stole home. Townsend went out on a fly to center field, but Nebraska had piled up four runs.

In the third Kansas scored one run. Curry fanned and Hall went out on a foul, Finley making a pretty catch against the fence. White sent a hot liner past third base, started to steal second, but went home on a fumble of Finley's throw to second base. Poorman fanned, making the sixth victim in three innings to Townsend's curves.

In her half of the third, Nebraska only made seven runs. It came about thus: Gains hit to short, who fumbled in the latest style. Rhodes hit to White, who made a poor throw to first, and Hood hit again to short-stop to see how that individual would act. He fumbled the ball as gracefully as before. The center field, not to be outdone by his captain, also let the sphere roll by him. While this was going on, everybody had gone home and sat down on the bench to rest. Finley followed with a hit to short, but this time Poorman got down on his knees and gathered in the ball, catching the runner at first. Bell hit safe, stole second, but was caught on third on De Putron's slow grounder to short. Ray stole second. Reeder got his base on balls. Raymond hit to short, who fumbled, filling the bases. Townsend hit to center field. Barnett was evidently dreaming of sunny Kansas, for he let the ball fly. Townsend and three others went home. Gains fanned and the Jayhawker captain fainted from joy.

In the fourth Kansas placed three more runs along side the lonesome little fellow made in the third. McCampbell began with a single. Prey went out on a fly to Reeder. Mac stole second. Tucker, just to show how it was done, fanned, this making the second time for him. A long single by Schraut brought McCampbell in. Barnett sent a long single to center, but De Putron, after a long run, failed on a difficult catch. Curry hit safe, bringing in two runs. Hall struck out.

For Nebraska Rhodes hit safe and went to second on an error by Curry. Hood went out on a fly. Finley sent a single to Barnett, who threw home to catch "Dusty." Connections failed there and Finley had also stolen second by this time. Bell reached the initial bag on an error by White. Reeder's long single to center brought in the two men on bases. Raymond on a hit to short forced Reeder out at second.

Kansas made two more in the fifth on Rhodes' error, letting Poorman to first and McCampbell's home run. Nebraska men went out in one, two, three order.

In the sixth Kansas jumped onto Townsend and made him look like thirty cents. A couple of bad errors materially aided the Jayhawkers. It happened thusly:

Schraut got his base, Barnett and Curry followed with singles, Hall a two bagger, and White another single. Poorman sent a hit between Gains and De Putron, and neither one got it. McCampbell followed with another safe one. Prey hit to Rhodes, who fumbled and Reeder followed suit on Tucker's grounder, letting that gentleman to first. Schraut fanned and Gains caught Barnett's fly. Prey started to steal third, and Finley threw high, let-
