

OUR COLLEGE NEWS.

—Hot weather.

—Will you come back next term?

—Did you pass at the examinations?

—Many kind friends parted, who will meet no more.

—The student roameth over the country, Olney hath a rest, and croquet is quiet.

—One young lady remarked, that she did not care how he asked her, if he did not send it on a postal card.

—Since we are to have a military Prof the question that agitates the public is, will the young ladies have to drill next term.

—Chancellor Benton delivered the annual address before the Faculty and students of the Oskaloosa College Iowa. We were informed it was a fine literary production.

—We noticed quite a number of anxious faces watching the doors of the recitation rooms, every time a class was dismissed, just before the late entertainments. It was near the end of the term, and the boys did not have any cash to pay postage.

—Prof. Manly sent in his resignation at the late meeting of the board of Regents, which was accepted. We are sorry to part with the professor, but his health has been such that he could not attend to his class duties, and has spent the last year in travel, without improving much.

—We call attention to the new advertisement of E Hallett on the front page. Mr. Hallett keeps on hand a large assortment of watches clocks &c. Students and others wishing to buy watches, jewelry, or anything in his line will do well to patronize him.

—This will be the last issue of the STUDENT, during the present school year, so we wish our patrons, friends, and fellow students, all a hearty good-by. We hope you may all enjoy the summer vacation, and come back next Sept. refreshed and invigorated for another year's labor.

—Subscribers finding an X after their names will please take notice that the time of their subscription has expired. It is earnestly to be hoped that all will renew their subscriptions next fall; thus materially assisting us in placing our paper in the front rank of literary journals.

—While we write this piece our alma mater is as silent as a tomb the students have about all gone to their respective homes and we are "left alone in our glory," a feeling of loneliness comes over us, where but a few days ago all was life and animation. What is life without sisters and brothers?

—The increase of the University Cabinet this year was about 2500 specimens, besides about 2500 more of a very select private cabinet, which belongs to Professor Bailey. The number of books in the Academic Library is 1541. That in the Agricultural Library 180. There will probably be about $600 to be spent next year to increase the Library.

—The good-natured Junior who presides over the destinies of this paper, was out visiting the Insane Asylum with a young lady friend, a few days ago. One of the rules of the Asylum is, that visitors are not allowed to go through the wards after 4 p. m. It was a few minutes after four when our editor arrived, but as the accomodating Assistant Superintendent did not wish to turn them away, he said he would show them through part of the wards. After they had looked through all but one female ward, they entered the buggy, and were on the point of starting for the city, when one of the young lady patients looked from a window of the unvisited ward, and called,—“Allen! dear Allen! why are you going so soon? and when will you be back?” The editor declared that she must be talking to some one in the building. The young lady affirmed that she now knew why he had gone so late—that they might not go through the upper ward.

—The popular Photographer V. H. Young, has several remarkably excellent specimens of art, among them a large photograph of Chancellor Benton. It is the best production of the art we have ever seen. Besides this are several excellent views of the University and its surroundings and interior. Students do you not want to procure a valuable memento of your school days?

—The Board of Regents at their late meeting elected two new professors. Prof. Emerson to fill the chair of modern Language, and Prof. Cadher to the chair of Chemistry and Physics. Prof. Bailey was assigned to the chair of Analytical Chemistry. In our judgment it would have been better to have filled the chair of English Literature and Oratory than to have had two in the departments of Chemistry.

—The campus presents a finer appearance now, than we have ever seen it. The flower beds are gay with many colored flowers, and show the neat and artistic taste of our late Janitor. The trees are all green and lively, and the grass plots have a very neat appearance. We are in hopes that the campus will not be allowed to run down during the summer months.

—The examinations of the past term closed Tuesday June 20. They were more satisfactory to both students, and professors, than any previous examination since the school started, there were very few who did not pass, and we believe there was a larger amount of honest work done than is usual when students are affected with spring fever, as badly as some of the students appear to be.

—The students at Dormitory no. 2 had a delightful time a few days before the close of the term. A supper was given in honor of F. O. Morton the vice president elect of the Palladian Society. Strawberries and all the requisites for a feast were in abundance. Toasts were proposed and eloquently replied to. The occasion will ever be remembered by those who participated.

MIND, MATTER, MONEY, BEAUTY.—Webster's Quarto Dictionary, as now published, has cost more intellectual labor, more money in its "getting up," and contains more matter, and a larger number of beautiful engravings, (3000 or more, with four pages of colored plates,) than any single volume ever before published for popular use in this or any other country. It is largely the standard in England as well as in this country. Bell & Dally, the publishers of Bohn's libraries, are the London publishers of this magnificent volume.

—There was quite a mad-dog excitement in the University a short time ago, some of the boys saw a dog panting from the heat and supposing it was mad he run shouting mad dog! mad dog!! The refrain was caught up by all the boys around the building and they hastened to gain the curiola where they said they could get a good view of the dog. They could not be induced to come down however until one of the brave Profs. had come with a needle gun, and after viewing the field carefully, pronounced the dog not mad, but hunting a place to get out of the heat.

MARRIED:—Kinney—Arguello.—At the residence of the Bride's father on the 28 ult by the Rev. Father Bosco, Steptoe Kinney of Nebraska City, and Miss Josephine Arguello of Santa Clara, Cal.

Mr. Kinney attended the University the first year of its existence, and was an active member of the Palladian society. Mr. Kinney will make his mark in the State. Miss Arguello, as we have been informed is a descendent of the old Spanish stock of California. Her grandfather and great grandfather both having been governors of California under the Mexican government.

—A Senior and Soph. just before one of the late examinations started from the University down Eleventh St. the Senior was telling a big yarn, when they came to the crossing that leads to the residence of one of the University's daughters. Both stopped short, and then ensued about ten minutes of a painful suspense each trying to entertain the other. Finally Senior started down the cross street remarking that, "I had an errand this way." Soph: "I thought you was going home, or we might have kept right on, as I have an errand this way too." Then ensued a tough race, for the first quarter of a mile they were even, but after that the reporter of the above, lost sight of them.

—Our gentlemanly Janitor Mr. McLain leaves us at the close of the present term, he goes to Paynesville Ohio to deliver an address before the members of the alumni, of the academy where he graduated, from there he goes to the Centennial to spend a few weeks, and from thence to Virginia, where he proposes to purchase a farm, and settle down for life. The students are under many obligations to him for his many kindnesses, especially in regard to society matters, and as a small token of respect they presented him with a fine gold pen and holder the best that could be purchased in the city. George promised to use it in letting the students know how he was getting along. The best wishes of all connected with the University go with him, and we know of no encomium that we could give him so good, as we heard the Chancellor pay him a few days before he left. One of the students remarked that it would be hard to find any one to fill Georges place, as well as he had done, the Chancellor replied, "No. Just about one in ten thousand will do as well as George."

—At the close of the graduating exercises on the 21 inst just as the Chancellor was going to pronounce the benediction, Mr. Allen W. Field stepped upon the rostrum with a fine Silver tilting water service and in behalf of the students presented it to Chancellor Benton as a memento of their love and respect for his care and watchfulness in their behalf. Mr. Field made the following neat little presentation speech:

BELOVED CHANCELLOR:—In behalf of students and the alumni of the University I have the pleasure of presenting to you this token of their high regard and love. In making this presentation a cloud of incidents, that would account for this expression of esteem, crowd themselves upon the memory, seeking utterance, but which to enumerate would be an endless task. When time shall have scattered us far and wide and the theories, formulas and idioms we are now toiling to comprehend are all forgotten, still will be impressed upon our minds the recollection of that one, who during the formative period of our lives, by precept and example, directed us to a pure and noble manhood. We ask you to accept this offering, not that as you refresh your thirst from its cooling fount, your memory of those who stand before you may be refreshed, for without this aid we feel assured that you would carry with you a lively interest for our future welfare, but it is rather to give material form to that tribute that the student's heart has already offered in return for that fairness, courtesy and liberality which has ever marked their intercourse with you. In all your future labors the best wishes of the friends of the University will attend you.

The Chancellor was taken entirely by surprise, he did not have the least suspicion that there was a plot formed against him, until Mr. Field stepped on the platform, when he was somewhat surprised, as he evidently thought, Mr. Field intended to deliver the benediction, without an invitation. At the close of Mr. Field's remarks, the Chancellor accepted the present in a few appropriate remarks: before he finished he was so much affected that he could hardly finish his remarks.

PERSONAL.

—Miss Lina Marble spent a couple of days in the city last week on her way to Pawnee city.

—Milton Easterday was up from Tecumseh the last week of school. Milt. is in the Co. clerks office of Johnson Co.

'74 F. P. Hurd attended the meeting of the alumni association and staid visiting his class mates during commencement week.

—Miss Emma Williams closed her school in Pawnee City, about the 15 inst. and spent several days in the city, on her way to her home in Kenesaw.

—James Sturdevant came in during commencement week. James looks hearty, and appears as if farming agrees with him. He expects to attend the school next fall.

—Miss Lizzie McClellan, who was a student of the University for the first, and second years after its opening, has gone to Ohio to spend six months for her health.

—Wayland Bailey, brother of the Prof. who has been attending the University the last year, was chosen principal of an academy in Penn. Young Prof. was a very industrious student, and always had his lessons well.

'74 W. H. Stevenson "took in" the commencement week, and appeared to enjoy himself immensely, he was constantly to be seen with some of his old friends. We do not object Steve, if your lady friends of Neb. City do not.

—Lawrence Bruner Nebraska's young Entomologist spent a week in the city during the close of the school. He is an enthusiast in his line, and promises to be one of the first entomologists in the country.

—We noticed the smiling face of Thomas Worley, at the Palladian exhibition. Tom was an active member of that society in its early days. He is now attending a theological school at Evanston, Ill., and graduates next June.

—Robbins Little started East about the first of June, he will visit the Centennial, and goes from there to the coal districts of Penn. where his uncle has an interest in one of the mines, he goes to work in his uncle's office. Rob. has attended the University for the past three years, two of which he was a typo in this office. The best wishes of the STUDENT goes with him, and we would rejoice to hear of his succeeding in life, to the utmost of his highest dreams.
