EDITORIALS.

This issue (No. 10, Vol. VI) closes the sixth year of our paper's existence. The only resemblance between its appearance now and that which it bore when first published may be found in the name HESPERIAN STUDENT, and the motto "Qui non proficit, deficit." The first form of the paper was that of a four page sheet; soon, however, it was increased in size eight pages. It continued to be published in this form for about four years when covers were added, but other than this no changes were made until Oct. of last year when the form was changed to that of a magazine of about thirty pages. The editorial corps has been the same from the first, and comprises an editor-in-chief, associate and local editors. These are elected annually by the "HESPERIAN STUDENT association" by whom the STUDENT is published. Until two years ago this association was composed of all the subscribers to the STUDENT. At the time referred to, it was decided by the Regents of the University that only students of the regular college classes, University students, or those who had two or more studies in the college department, and students of the Agricultural college, should be members of the Association. About nine months ago, this rule was somewhat modified, so that now only college students, agricultural students who are in the third year of their course, and University students or those who are taking select studies from the college department but who are able to pass examination for the Freshman class are members of the association. The board consists of the President, vice president and Secretary of the association, who are also elected annually, and the editorial staff. The Business manager is appointed by the board. The responsibility of publishing the paper devolves upon the board. They are to publish a paper of some kind, but what the form and general character of it shall be are questions which must be met by them. At present the editors of the STUDENT receive no pay for their services. The Business manager receives ten per cent of the receipts for advertisements and twenty per cent on all subscriptions. The question has been raised before as to whether or not the editor-in-chief should receive any remuneration for his work. By some it has been thought that the honor of the position is ample compensation for all his labors. "Any number of persons" it has been said, "can be induced to do the work without any
