

measles. Well, the surmise would be about correct. For about a month the disease has been prevalent in a light form, and we are glad to say that in no instance has there been a dangerous case. Nearly all the patients have recovered, and the others are convalescing.

—Prof. Stadler continues to be on hand at his studio in the University, where he is ready to do all kinds of oil painting. Portraits a speciality. The Professor has very many excellent specimens of this fine art in his studio, which speak volumes in his favor as an artist.

—If this number of the STUDENT isn't up to the usual standard, please remember that measles among our printers, the foot-race, examinations, and the general hurry of things incident to the closing of the term are among the difficulties we have had to contend with this month.

—Vacation is at hand, and now the weary student can take himself homeward to spend the holidays and get a four-line puff in the local newspaper. He can tell his friends how they do things at "the University," and enjoy himself generally. Verily, vacation is immense.

—Miss Rogers, assisted by her class, gave a musical soiree last Tuesday evening at Palladian Hall. The repertoire embraced a choice selection of solos, duets, and opera selections. We have not space to make special mention of each performance, but all were well rendered and highly creditable to the performers.

—The Shakesperians have chosen the following officers for next term: E. F. Steele, President; Miss Eva Ransom, Vice-President; Miss Anna Holbrook, Secretary; C. E. Stratton, Treasurer. The members are well satisfied with the progress made this term, and hope to derive in the future many beneficial results.

—PRETTY LITTLE BLUE-EYED STRANGER.—Is the title of one of the prettiest songs we have ever heard. It was composed by Bobby Newcomb, the celebrated minstrel professional. The melody is bound to captivate every lover of good song, and remain fresh in their memory a lifetime. Price, 35 cents per copy. For sale by any music dealer in the United States, or can be had from the publisher, F. W. Helmie, 50 West Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

—A social party was given at the residence of the Chancellor on Thanksgiving evening. Quite a number were present, and were most enjoyably entertained by Miss May, the Chancellor's daughter, in her usual vivacious manner. Also, the Shakespearean Club gave a dinner to its members. They demolished considerable turkey and other Thanksgiving essentials and had a general good time.

—The Chancellor gave a reception to the Regents at his residence, on the evening of the 18th inst. The members of the Faculty with their families, the State officers and families, the Mayor and City Council, were all present, as well as the Board of Regents and a number of students. The Chancellor and his family made their guests perfectly at home, and altogether the gathering was very enjoyable.

—An omnibus load of students, both genders equally represented, went out to a spelling school, at Wolf's schoolhouse, about five miles from town, on the evening of the 1st inst. They report the trip as a very enjoyable one. The Editor held the floor, and, with one of the young ladies, was the last to succumb. This isn't surprising, for if he can hold out at spelling like he can at talking, we wonder that he didn't stand up all night.

—In another column our readers may learn what was done at the cadets' reception, but what was said remains to be told. We don't pretend to know everything that was said during the evening, but what we heard was something like this: "Why, how do you do?—perfectly splendid—have another apple?—no, thank
