

essed. Our local thought he would compete for the prize for the biggest nose, but there is one in this town that could get away with him even on that.

THE University orchestra, organized this term, will soon be able to furnish music at all our public entertainments. This, we think is a move in the right direction as the University has the talent, which, if properly cultivated will make a first rate orchestra; and then when we want any music we can get it right at home.

AT the last meeting of the Entre Nous club the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

D. H. Wheeler,	1st, Vice President.

LIEUT. Dudley has succeeded in obtaining a thousand rounds of cartridges for target practice next term; he has also obtained a thousand blanks to be used in drill. The Lieutenant has taken extra pains to furnish every thing necessary to make the military department a success, and we hope to see his efforts not fruitless by having a full company next term.

A NEW arrangement has been made for drawing books from the library. It is so arranged that all students may receive and return books both in the forenoon and afternoon of every school-day. This makes it much more convenient, as some wish to get books in the morning while they are at the University, and some wish to take books oftener than once a week.

WE found a note in the hall the other day which read something as follows: "My DEAR DEAR: Cl—m—e!" The sequence we will not publish, and you can perhaps judge what it was from the preceding, but we would suggest that students who write such letters should be more careful how they sling them around, for we cannot forbear to read them when they come in our way.

PROF. Collier's astronomy class have been star-gazing lately. A goodly number of students for several mornings went to the University just before day-break to observe Jupiter and Venus, which are visible at that time. An evening was appointed to take observations on the moon, but was too cloudy, and we have not learned whether another evening has been appointed or not.

IN our last issue we mentioned the contest between two of the first class boarding houses. The final settlement was made on 12th St., east of the University. Three of the most honorable gentlemen in the University were appointed judges for this occasion. The action was fierce for awhile, but victory soon turned on the side of No. 1s, and the judges received the due praise for their impartial decision.

Two Freshmen who are aspiring to the position of local editor at the next election, undertook to display their skill at slinging locals. When they had taken seats at the table they were at a loss to know what they should write. After ransacking their brain for some time, one began with "I think a jimnazum is wanted ever school in the country has one." We ask you all to support this young journalist in obtaining the position he so much deserves.

AT a recent meeting of the Palladian society the following officers were elected for next term:
