

Influence of Freshman Morals upon the Latin School Students." Master Georgie Spurlock gave a masterly disquisition upon "Buddhism its Rise, Principles, and Influence upon Literature, Science and Metaphysics." Forming a ring and kneeling facing the tree, they repeated "Now I lay me" and retired. The afternoon was spent in No. 7, where the Sophomores who had showed the white feather, aided them in having a time. Songs, drop the handkerchief, and dancing were the order of the day, and the grand finale consisted in a supper given by the stay-at-home Soph girls who had prepared a picnic dinner and wanted to use it.

In the evening we were favored by an Arbor Day address, delivered by the originator of the annual observance of that holiday, the Hon. J. Sterling Morton. To attempt to describe it were fruitless and it were equally impossible to print it at length, but we can express our enthusiastic thanks to the Chancellor for having secured Mr. Morton, and to Mr. Morton for his masterly and highly entertaining address.

HALL HAPPENINGS.

C. S. Polk is around again.
Miss Lesh is again absent from school.
Ask Baughman who stole the boat.
The cadets loomed up in the Spy of Atlanta.
Eddy drew a book out of the library one day last week.
A few of the students took in Booth at Omaha last week.
Misses Stratton and Appleget spent Arbor Day in Ashland.
The Seniors have concluded not to adopt a class motto or a class badge.
In opera house at Crete: "Who is that learned looking gentleman who talks so loud?"
Spurlock celebrated his twenty-first birthday by inviting a half-dozen of his friends to supper.
It is circulated that a laundry delivery wagon was seen to stop at Kleine's room one day last week.
The faculty has concluded to let the Seniors who are on program off from the regular class work for the last three weeks of the term.
A very pleasant University social took place at the home of Miss Manley on the evening of the 20th. About forty students were present.
Now that we students can't even have the halls to hold caucuses in, the best plan would be to pass a subscription paper and buy rustic seats to be scattered over the campus.

Ask Kleine if he knows what a "portugoose" is.

Miss Southwick has been visiting Lincoln and University friends.

On Saturday, the 30th, a match game of ball was played on the campus.

Prof. Aughey, formerly connected with the University, is visiting in Lincoln.

Ask Fletcher about the way the Sophs were left when they asked permission to leave.

Sig Polk has gone to Louisville to spend a week in order to get completely rested for the term's work.

We are glad to recall our announcement that Miss Nellie M. Scott would not be with us this term, for she expects to be back this week.

MR. JOHN K. GREEN: When you come around and fix that window in this office the "editorial puff" which you bargained for will appear in our columns, and not before.

The annual cadet encampment is again the talk. In spite of the duckings, rains, and burnt noses the boys have received in the past, they are as anxious as ever to try camp life.

The new janitor who takes Harry's place is too fearfully punctual on Friday nights to suit the students. Exactly at 10:29 $\frac{3}{4}$ , no matter what is going on, he begins to turn out the lights.

Mr. Hoover received a telegram from Blue Hill announcing the death of his mother. He took the noon train for home on Sunday last. Mr. Hoover has the sympathy of all in this sorrow of sorrows.

Prof. in Ethics: "Man and animals both think, but a man thinks that he thinks." Student: "Well, then the difference between Mr. C-k and an animal is that he thinks he thinks, but don't, while an animal thinks, but don't know it?"

The Freshies have more class spirit and energy than any other class in school. Not even the torrents of Arbor Day dampened their ardor, and they held a picnic in the building where elegant refreshments, consisting of bread and butter, were served to all loyal members of '90.

The committee on Field Day report the prospects very encouraging and are able to present an outline of the program, although the entries for the various contests are not as numerous as may be expected.
