> The Palace Amphitheatre Circus. Concerning the celebrated Palace Amphitheatre circus, now on its way eastward from the Pacific Coast, which will exhibit in this city August 7th and 8th, the Rocky Mountain News thus speaks:

"The best show that ever visited Denver came to town yesterday. The Palace Amphitheatre circus in its equipment, stock, and in the character of its performers, has neveral. Every road leading out of the er had an equal in Colorado, and it will be hard to find its superior anywhere. The performance last evening, despite the fact that the show arrived one day ahead of time attracted a large audience, which, had it been as critical as Iago could have found nothing to cavil at. From the beginning to the close the acts performed were all new, and nothing could have excelled the grace and strength exhibited in their performance. From such an assment of richness in the shape of extraordinary feats, it is perhaps the most unique feature of he exhibition was the absurd trio of French clowns, who repeatedly brought down the house with their escentricities. They came in the ring looking as solemn as owls, each armed with a fiddle, on which he kept fiddling, while turning all manner of somersaults, twisting and contorting around others till the three fiddlers and the three clowns seemed one clown and one fiddle. Then there were the wonderful Carlo brothers, who limb on each other's shoulders like cats, the topmost one taking leaps from the one to the other that were on the ground. A more wonderful exhibition of strength and skill was never seen in the territories. We have no space to ingividualize each and every act of above the ordinary entertainment, but this notice would be incomplete without a reference to the trained horses of the establishment. Handsome, better behaved or more intelligent equines never were seen in Denver. The concluding act of the per-formance, however, was after all the chef d'oevre of all. It was the leap-ing over ten horses with the entire troppe pited on top by the lion leap-er O'Brien, who performed the feat with an ease that seemed to take from its difficulty." FIRST WAGON LOAD OF WATER AND MUSK MELONS AT TIZARD'S CALIFORNIA AND GENERAL FRUIT STORE. 204 Farnham street.
