Next Thursday evening, at the Odd Fellows' Hall, a meeting of the wives and daughters of members of the orde will be held to make arrangements to aid in carrying out the festival.

-The Farnham street merchants complain that Fletcher & Hubbard have failed to keep their contract for laying the dust on that thoroughfare, and they intimate a determination to start a subscription to employ some one who will sprinkle that street thoroughly. They claim that Fletcher & Hubbard ought to get their water from the river, even if their pond is dried up, and they lose a little money by it.

-The ice cream festival and sociable given by the ladies of the "Hope of the West" Lodge of Good Templars at Mayer's Hall, Wednesdayevening, was very largely attended, and a very pleasent time was had. The refreshment tables were liberally patronized. Dancing was indulged in, the music being furnished by Van Orman's full band. Altogether the festival proved a greater social and financial success than even the most sanguine had expected. -The excursion to St. Paul, which leaves on Monday next, will be as large as the previous one, and possibly larger, for all those who were on the last speak in such glowing terms of it, that every one who can possibly go is preparing to do so. On calling upon Mr. Grattan this morning, we saw a long list of names, among them many of our most respectable citizens. We were also informed by Mr. Grattan that he has made the same rates with hotels, earriages, etc., and that he will accompany the party to St. Paul and Minneapolis in person, and see that everything is carried out as agreed upon, and point out the many places of interest and best lakes for fishing. As this is positively the last chance this season to visit this part of the country at the low rates now offered, and as the number of tickets are limited, we advise all to call as garly as possible and secure them.

Rescued From a Colored Den of Infamy.

A bright looking, well dressed little girl, named Olga Cool, aged but | EDITOR BEE: fourteen years, was brought before the Police Court vesterday, on a sort of general charge of total depravity. For about the last ten days, she has been living in a colored house of ill-fame, the lowest den in the city, located back of the United States Hotel. Her presence there, and the apparent pleasure that she enjoyed in the vile society of those colored courtezans, have been noticed from day today by the respectable people living in that vicinity, and several complaints have been made to the police concerning her, and two or three kind-hearted persons have made futile efforts to rescue her from this lowest life of infamy. A certain city official, a day or two ago, induced his wife to consent to take the girl into their house, and try to reform her. The girl had agreed to do so, and had packed up her things with the intention of going, when suddenly she changed her mind, and determined to remain where

Hence the complaint. When no leeman Collins arrested her yester day morning,sin used the vilest and most profane language towards him, and upon being brought before Judge Wilbur she repeated it, and was doubly saucy.

Judge Wilbur sent the juvenile prisoner to jail to await further action, and to give her an opportunity for reflection. In the meantime, some means will probably be devised to prevent her from returning to the iniquitous den, which should be broken up at once.

The girl had a most violent tem per, an unruly and foul tongue, and was certainly the most perfect specimen of juyenile depravity ever brought before an Omaha police court, and it was the opinion of a level-headed bystander that all efforts to reform her would be as difficult a task as breaking a vicious mule from kicking.

A Slight Unpleasantness.

Wednesday a ticket-scalper, known as "Coupon John," sold a lady an expired ticket to New York by way apr28t f. of St. Louis. As the lady was proceeding along Farnham street, some railroad men learned of the fact, and sent her to the St. Joe ticket office to see about it. Mr. Joe Tehon, the local passenger agent, learned from her who sold her the ticket, and condemned the act, especially as the lady was short of money.

About six o'clock "Coupon John' came up town to chastise Tehon, for "back-capping" him as he expressed it. Tehon ordered him out of the office, and when he resisted a lively fight ensued, a sort of rough and tumble, which resulted in victory for Tehon, who bounced the obstreperous John out of doors, but Lot before he ressived several scratches from the uncut nails of his opponent.
