-Thursdayevening about half past six o'clock, while the elerk at Webber & Behm's boot and shoe store, was engaged for a short time in the rear room, a woman entered, and leisurely surveying the goods, coolly picked out a pair of elegant shoes, and secreted them in her bosom, thinking no doubt that no one had seen the movement. But she was mistaken, as Mr. Adamsky, a shoemaker across the street, observed her action, and crossing over, he met her as she was coming out, and demanded the shoes, which she at once gave up, and he replaced them in the store. In the meantime she took a hurried departure, not caring to wait to be interviewed by the policeman who had been sent for. However, she was afterwards arrested and lodged in Jail. She gave her name as Patsy O'Neil. Yesterday Judge Peabody refused to entertain a complaint against her unless the complaining witness would advance the fees; and thus owing to the neglect of the County Commissioners in not providing for such eases, she escaped a merited
