LANCASTER COUNTY.

Political Reformers on the War Path.

On our way to the postoffice Saturday afternoon, a flaming poster announced that J. W. Sharts and W. F. Chapin, "People's" candidates for the Legislature, would address the citizens of Lincoln this evening at the Opera House.

At half-past seven or eight o'clock we entered the hall and found Mr. Sharts reading and commenting on an editorial which appeared in the Blade of recent date. Mr. Sharts is not a very good reader, but by close attention we caught the sentiments expressed in the editorial, which are as follows:

The article charged the Journal with being the rank of the ring, but denied that the rank and file of the party followed or accepted the ring as leaders. He endorsed the article with many flourishes, and declared that there was a ring, but that the rank and file of the Republican party were not to be taken for granted.

Then the gentleman gave us that portion of his extemporaneous speech which had been carefully committed to memory. He indulged in a few words of high diction, and heaven. He wondered what some Republicans would do, when after having safely reached the desired haven they would glance over their shoulder and see some lucky democrat there—a thing altogether impossible.

After careful consideration, he concluded that said republican would jump over the fence and take a nine days tumble to hell—a move which we think he would certainly be justified in making. The motion cheered at that, though we failed to see a very high order of wit in the afar fetched remark.

He then took up his record as a soldier, and demonstrated to the satisfaction of all present that he was not an officer, but a smooth member of the regiment, and when he stated that out of the nine hundred which left Cincinnati, seven hundred were sleeping under the sod of old Virginia, the audience, true to their democratic instincts, cheered again. What there was to cheer over in the loss of seven hundred Union soldiers, we cannot understand. After apologizing for his physical inability to make a speech, he retired.

Mr. W. F. Chapin undertook to prove that he was just as good a Republican as Tom Kennard, by proving Tom a rascal. Now proving Kennard a rascal did not help him, any more than proving Tilton a liaricr would help Kennard. What ever Kennard may be, and we don't think much of him as a politician, Chapin did not harm him nor help himself. Chapin did not propose to confound his hearers, but that they should discuss national finance, the Kellogg mass, and other questions that were too heavy for him. Like Sharts, he did not expect to make a speech, so told them that he would address them again, and retired.

There were seventy-five or one hundred, at the most, supporters of the republican reformer, who admit that it was, to say the least, very discouraging to reformers. As to the success of the opening meeting of the opposition present, who admit with few present and rambling remarks by candidates, we leave your readers to judge. This we know; Republicans are highly excited, the opposition discouraged.

The funeral of A. M. McCandless took place on Sunday, at 10 o'clock. The following gentlemen were appointed by the Bar Association as pall bearers: General Cobb, E. E. Brown, M. H. Sessions, T. M. Marquet, S. S. Galey, D. G. Hull, J. R. Webster, W. J. Lamb, W. F. Chapin, Parent, England, H. B. Chapin, Parent, England, H. B. Chapin, Parent, England. Appropriate resolutions were adopted. GRIMES.

George Francis Train has at last relinquished his intention of becoming President of the United States, but we've gone too far in this experiment of free government to stop now.

They don't seem to have many Reformers up at Ripon. When Senator Carpenter, in his speech, exclaimed, "What are your Reformers?" one of those awfully practical fellows answered, "He's over in the beer-saloon, playing pigeon-hole."—Mitsueke Sentinel.

South Carolina is the right place for the deliberate endorsement of the term to emanate from. It led in the rebellion, was foremost in the nullification project, and has been generally of a bad spirit. It was the first to secede from the Union. Revolutionary war broke a state which may well lead in third-term agitations. The Republican party is not likely to accept it.—Pittsburg Gazette. (Rep.)

Returns from the entire state of Vermont, excepting one town, show that at the recent election the Republicans elected 183 members of the lower branch of the Legislature, and 115 of the Democratic party are three Independents, one Farmer, and in five towns there was no election. The last House contained 218 Republicans and 32 Democrats. Evidently there has been a good deal of independent voting in other parts of the State than Plattsburgh's district.

Mr. James O. Broadhead, who has for years been considered one of the "wheel-horses" of the Missouri Democracy, "has gone back on the party." Having been invited to take the stump for the Democratic State ticket, he responded in this way: "While I can never justify the acts of reconstruction or the plunder of the southern people in the name of loyalty, I cannot admit that a war upon the Radical party must needs be a war upon Union men. Such, I believe every Republican will concede, is the spirit of the Democratic party of this country. It is the spirit of the Central Committee, and such was done at the State Convention, must satisfy the careless observer of this fact. For my part I want none of the Democracy, and I do not oppose Mr. Hardin because he was not a Union man nor favor Mr. Gentry because he was, but when I see a distinctly made, and I am told that Democracy means rebellion, there is but one course for me to pursue.

Ex-President Andrew Johnson made an address before the Agricultural County Fair at Gallatin, Tennessee, the other day, which was, as usual, composed of an historical account of the Republic, and a much of the Republic. He had stood in the front of the Union of peril, and he thanked God that the highway which he had traveled, in public position and life, was not paved with human skulls, his path was not strewn with dead men's bones, and he had never caused any battle-fields of carnage and slaughter.

It is noticeable that a considerable number of distinguished Louisiana politicians had important business in St. Louis during last week's disturbances.

NEBRASKA SKETCHES.

(Special Correspondence of the Bee.) "HEADERS IN THE SADDLE," NEMAHA CO., Sept. 28.

Having made the circuit of Nebraska county and "captured" a few items, we propose to "turn them over" to the readers of the Bee.

One mile west of Brownville we stopped to take a look over the magnificent farm of Gov. Furnas, consisting of 220 acres of gently undulating prairie land. Mr. W. H. Lorraine is in charge of the place during the Governor's absence. The whole farm has been carefully and scientifically cultivated, and the 100 acres of orchard in progress are justly said to be without an equal in the west, and we believe that better fruit, either for size or flavor, cannot be found anywhere.

Mr. Lorraine has found no difficulty in disposing of every bushel of fruit at good prices as fast as ripened; while many persons who have not taken the trouble to graft their trees, or select the best varieties, are obliged to feed their fruit to stock, as there is sufficient of the first-class article to supply the market.

A few miles farther west we passed the Sheridan mills which have the reputation of turning out an extra good quality of flour. Nebraska county has very little uncultivated land, as most of it has been under cultivation for fifteen to twenty years, and everywhere you see neatly trimmed hedges, fine cropland, stately groves and spacious houses and barns, indicating a wealthy and prosperous people.

Mr. John Strait, who has lived here for eighteen years, says that this is the first time that he has ever failed to get a good crop. There is a constant stream of "movers" passing through here, they come from the more western counties of this State, and Kansas, and are returning east, totally discouraged by the entire loss of their crops. They tell stories of want and privation, and that they had to leave or starve. Many of these families will return in the spring.

We returned to Brownville on Saturday evening, and were informed that Mr. David Campbell, the city Marshal, had just arrested a couple of men, suspected of horse-stealing. The men acted strangely and told contradictory stories in regard to the horse they had with them. The prisoners claim to be hardy, agricultural implement-makers, &c.

In our last Brownville letter we forgot to mention in our list of leading firms the house of Stevenson & Cross, which does a large business in hardware, agricultural implements, &c.

Brownville boasts of the quality of its larger beer, and Jacob Kamschke, who keeps his saloon on Main street, says: "It is a better ash ash as do not dey makes off in Yarnum."

In the course of our perambulations around the city, we were met by an old gentleman who wanted to know if we "wrote those pieces for the Bee." On being answered in the affirmative, he indicated that we should go with him, and he would show us what a Nebraska sculptor was able to do. We were taken into a little 6x10 shop where a workman was engaged chiseling the graceful outlines of an infant from a block of marble. The old gentleman proceeded to indicate to us the intricate and delicate mistake in regard to the kind of "Bees" in which we dealt, the sculptor (Mr. Neidhart) exhibited his masterpiece, which were certainly the finest we have seen in the West. He will exhibit his work at the State fair, which will be well attended by the leading farmers and mechanics of this county.

"RANGER."

POLITICAL NOTES.

Tell us, when did the Democracy in the days of its power ever investigate the honesty and integrity and fraud committed within its own ranks? Never.

George Francis Train has at last relinquished his intention of becoming President of the United States, but we've gone too far in this experiment of free government to stop now.

They don't seem to have many Reformers up at Ripon. When Senator Carpenter, in his speech, exclaimed, "What are your Reformers?" one of those awfully practical fellows answered, "He's over in the beer-saloon, playing pigeon-hole."—Mitsueke Sentinel.

THE National Convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, held last week, had under discussion the proposed reduction of wages. The action of the convention touching this subject is decidedly adverse to further reduction under any circumstances.

MR. BATES is well known to Judge Lake as industrious, studious, attentive to business, and a fine speaker.—Herald.

Yes, Judge Lake knows him, and that is one reason why Judge Lake is for Conwell and against Bates for District Attorney, first, last and all the time.

An important opinion has just been promulgated by Attorney General Williams, touching the right of the Secretary of the Treasury to remit fines and penalties under the U. S. Revenue laws. The Attorney General holds that under section 52 of the revised statutes the Secretary of the Treasury has power to remit fines, penalties, and forfeitures arising under any revenue law when the amount does not exceed $1,000, and when there has been no summons, inquiry and statement by a Judge.

MR. WALDO LYON, one of the most popular Republicans of Burt County, has been nominated for the State Senate from the Sixth Senatorial District, comprising Washington and Burt counties. This nomination is virtually equivalent to an election.

Mr. Lyon is represented to us by parties intimately acquainted with him, as being a man of unswerving integrity and unquestioned capacity. The Republicans of his district may, therefore, be congratulated upon their choice.
