Report of an Interesting Conversation Which Took Place Yesterday Between the Postmaster General and an Alabama Senator.

The Chronicle in an editorial this morning headed "Is reconstruction a failure," says recent events in the south have failed to create the profound sobriety in the mind of every patriotic and peace-loving citizen of the nation in regard to the efficiency of the reconstruction measure of Congress; some important element necessary to proper reconstruction seems to have been omitted, and its plain duty is an intelligent legislature to rectify the situation with all its difficulties, supply the omission or correct the error, which ever it may be. The Senate Committee meets here on Monday, October 13th, and several of the justices have already arrived. The docket is now two years behind its time and will be necessarily great.
