DEADWOOD DIGGINGS.

The "Gulches" Briefly Described—Where "Pay Dirt" is Found.

Magnificent Probabilities, but Little Yet Accomplished—"Bed Rock" Mysteriously Missing.

Miners Off for the Big Horn.

Correspondence of the Chicago Telegraph.

DEADWOOD CITY, July 12.

Before entering upon details I will mention that the placer deposits tributary to Deadwood City and what I can ascertain of their geological position from the most reliable data at hand.

Whitehead was the principal claim in extent, it being about 20 miles, and Deadwood, its principal tributary, is about six miles in length.

The general course and trend is east and west, as is the case with all the other gold-bearing gulches in the vicinity.

Negro gulch, from which very fine specimens of coarse gold have been taken, is 35 miles to the north of Deadwood, being a short tributary of Bear creek, or gulch.

Beaugh gulch, 35 miles to the north, is of great extent, but has only a little ground yet opened.

Sand creek, 65 miles northwest, is many miles in extent, and is a regular pay streak; yet struck; Potato and Tender-foot gulches, 25 miles to the northward, have some claims paying well, and a nugget has been obtained from the former weighing nearly $150.

Box Elder, 15 miles to the southward, is very extensive, but no ground has yet been prospected which is thought will "pay."

At Rapid creek, 35 miles to the southward, the ground is very deep, and no bed-rock yet reached; it prospects well, but can only be handled by capitalists.

Jim creek and Gold run are little tributaries which are said to yield well, and promise well, but can only be handled by capitalists.

Now all this aggregates a tremendous extent of placer country, and if it should even approximate the richness to the deposits of the districts in the old mining countries, it would afford employment to at least 100,000 men; but the claims which are unworked "apostles." There are no regular deposits, and the country is as yet scarcely prospected at all.

Whitehead and Leadwood are, and a little town established. I have no doubt general farming will prove successful here, in favorable localities, as there are some flourishing gardens in Whitehead and Deadwood gulches, high up in the mountains.

Claims are very frequent here, accompanied by terrific electrical phenomena. Days warm and nights cool and pleasant. Though there are no mosquitoes in the Hills, it is the most insectiferous region, in the summer season, I ever visited outside the tropics.

An expedition of 70 men set out from Deadwood City day before yesterday for the Big Horn mountains.

They will go by way of the head of the Rosebud, where it is said there is a flourishing little camp of mountain miners, who have struck rich veins of gold. This camp is said to be about 125 miles northwest of Deadwood City. It is reported here that paying diggings have also been discovered in the Owl Creek mountains, one of the western tributaries of the Big Horn. I hear of still another large expedition organizing for the Big Horn country.

Emigration has begun to pour into the Hills, and the population is now estimated at from 8,000 to 10,000, the latest who arrived report that they had no trouble with the Indians, and few were seen by them.

The warriors are all doubtless concentrated or co-operating in harassing the troops in the field. But there are small straggling parties of hostiles around the Hills, beyond doubt. They made a raid on a herd of horses down near Crook City, 12 miles below here, a few days ago, and succeeded in getting away with half a dozen head.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, July 27.

After the reading of the journal, Mr. Bayard said: I am sure the Senate and country will be deeply affected by the announcement of the melancholy event of yesterday, the death of our late friend and brother Allen T. Caperton, senator from West Virginia.

I move as a mark of respect so justly due to the memory of this excellent and honorable man, that the senate stand adjourned until to-morrow at 11.

Mr. Stevenson said he concurred in what he had said, and moved that a committee of four senators be appointed to accompany the remains of the deceased to his late residence in West Virginia. Agreed to.

Mr. Bayard said: I have seen some well defined lodes here, which I believe to be rich in mineral, but they show nothing to excite anybody. Usually quartz which is remarkably productive at the surface does not hold out so well as that of moderate richness. Long tunnels must be run in at practical points where there has been so started yet, I think—and deep shafts must be sunk before capitalists will make heavy investments.

The motion of Mr. Bayard was then agreed to, and the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

The committee on appropriation reported back the senate bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the construction of the Washington monument. Passed with the amendments, one of which increases the amount to $300,000.

A message from the senate announcing the death of Senator Caperton of West Virginia, was presented, whereupon, on motion of Mr. Wilson, the yeas and nays were adopted. Messrs. Wilson, Banks, Luttrell, Douglas, Hardenburg, Faulkner and Kasson were appointed a committee to accompany the body to West Virginia, and the house adjourned.

The Silver Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 27.

The house's early adjournment has only prevented the starting of the mining committee's silver bill to-day, but probably throws it over till next week, with greatly diminished prospects of its passage.

The special assignment of to-morrow's session for the consideration of the naval committee's reports on Robeson, and the pendency of the contested election case, as well as other business, together with the fact that to-morrow and Saturday, under the rules, are private bill days, will, it is believed, prevent any attempts to call up the silver bill this week. On Monday, if not overweighed by the adoption of Mr. Holman's amendment, it will be called, and the special resumption, and peeling the specie resumption, will be a chance of passage, under suspension of the rules, as Mr. Kelly's similar bill was on the 10th of the old silver dollar called only seven votes out of two-thirds majority last Monday; but if it awaits the morning hour, and the yeas and nays are taken, it will probably be passed.

They will go by way of the head of the Rosebud, where it is said there is a flourishing little camp of mountain miners, who have struck rich veins of gold. This camp is said to be about 125 miles northwest of Deadwood City. It is reported here that paying diggings have also been discovered in the Owl Creek mountains, one of the western tributaries of the Big Horn. I hear of still another large expedition organizing for the Big Horn country.
