The German Military Band.

Three grand concerts—one to-night, one to-morrow afternoon and one to-morrow evening—will be given at the Academy of Music by the famous German Military Band.

This band is attached to the 31st and 76th Regiments of Prussian Infantry. They were granted a furlough by Emperor Wilhelm to visit the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, where they carried off the highest honors ever awarded to a military band.

They have met with the greatest success wherever they have performed, and are now making a flying visit to the Pacific coast prior to their departure for home.

They appear in the full dress uniform of the Rifle Guard of the German empire. The programme for this evening is made up of the choicest selections, and we know that those who attend will enjoy a rare musical treat.

The band does not play on the streets at all, as the members consider this method of advertising unnecessary.

A conductor whom's living with-in his salary.

There were several good stories told at the conductors' banquet last evening, but the one that created the most laughter was that which was related by conductor McElroy, from Pennsylvania.

He said that a conductor on an eastern road was approached by a seedy looking individual, who wanted to get a free ride, as he didn't have any money.

"All right," said the conductor, "go forward in the smoking car, and I'll fix you all right."

Soon afterwards the conductor appeared in the smoking car to collect fare from the passengers. He took up fare from everybody except the dead-beat man.

Another man, who happened to be the superintendent of the road. The superintendent noticed that he had overlooked this man, and asked him why he had done it.

"Why, that's a conductor," was the reply.

"His appearance does not indicate it. Look at those clothes," said the superintendent.

"Well," said the conductor, "he can't help that. He's a conductor on a Western road, and he is one of those fellows who is trying to live within their salary. And that's what he has come to."

This was satisfactory to the superintendent, and the man obtained his ride without further inquiry.

Mr. McElroy stated that there was nothing personal in the story.

City Lots Safer than Banks and Life Insurance.

RARE CHANCE FOR AN INVESTMENT.

PERFECT TITLES, AND WARRANTY DEEDS.

50 lots, desirably located in different parts of the city, will be sold at bed-rock prices, at 10 o'clock to-morrow—Saturday, Nov. 11, 1876—at the auction store of Kurtz & Allen, in Caldwell Block, Douglas street.

The tide is turning, and this is the one that the great poet referred to in the following:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

Never were there such bargains offered in the way of real estate. All the real estate journals over the country concede that "bottom is reached"; and the general feeling among the best real estate men in the city and other cities is, that the millions of idle capital hoarded up throughout the country is already seeking investment in real property, and it will soon commence advancing to such higher figures than it can be bought at to-day; so look to it!

RAILROAD MEN, WORKING MEN, CLERKS AND OTHERS, for now is your opportunity to secure for yourselves and families a "home"; a rare chance to buy a lot cheap, for the property must and will be sold.

Astor, Girard and nearly all of the millionaires of the world, made the bulk of their immense fortunes in real estate. Ask Byron Reed, the Koutzses, Creighton's, and others of this city, what proportion of their money has been realized from real estate.

BANKS, LIFE INSURANCE AND REAL ESTATE.

When a man has his lot paid for he has something substantial to fall back on. He can't lose it. It is all the time growing more valuable. It's owner is a freeholder, and he has a comfortable, independent home before he knows it. It is the best savings bank he can find for his money, and is the safest and most promising investment that can be made at the present time, in these days of rottenness, corruption and defalcation in banks, life insurance companies, etc.; but nothing short of a deluge or an earthquake can get away with city lots.

THE GREAT CENTRAL CITY.

Omaha, as a great railroad centre and the centre of four thousand miles of river navigation, and as a manufacturing town, with its splendid agricultural lands surrounding it, is destined to become the great central city of the country.

Stop paying rent and buy a lot. The money paid out in way of rentals would, in a short time, buy a home of your own.

Below will be found a complete list of the lots to be sold, with the appraised value marked against each; and the property will be sold for one-half or three fifths of such appraisal, should no higher bids be obtained:

Table with 2 columns: Lot No. and Appraisal. Includes lots 161, 181, 187, 188, 195, 207, 236, 254, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400.

A NOVEL BET.

Which Will be Carried Out as Soon as the Presidential Election is Decided.

The following novel bet on the presidential election will be carried out by the parties to the following agreement, as soon as the election is decided:

OMAHA, June 29, 1876.

Be it remembered that on this 29th day of June, 1876, the following agreement is made between Henry Maret, of Omaha and Douglas county, Neb., of the first part, and Gustav Bencke, of the same place, of the second part:

Henry Maret, of the first part, agrees and does hereby agree that in case in the next Presidential election, Governor Samuel J. Tilden is elected as President of the United States, he will and has personally to carry said Gustav Bencke, of the second part, personally, without any aid, from the corner of Tenth and Howard streets, in the city of Omaha, State of Nebraska, on a wheelbarrow up to the Grand Central hotel, in the same city and State, and back to the place of starting.

Gustav Bencke, of the second part, agrees and does hereby agree in case Rutherford B. Hayes is elected in said election to carry said Henry Maret in the same way and the same distance.

All to be done as soon as the election of the winning party.

HENRY MARET. GUSTAV BENCKE.

Signed in presence of EDWARD WIRTH, GUSTAVE SCHILL.

Note—The place of starting is as changed by agreement to Seeger Hall, on Douglas street. Due notice will be given to the parties when the affair will take place.

The banquet given by the citizens of Omaha to the visiting conductors of the International Brotherhood, at the Grand Central Hotel last evening, was a grand affair.

From half past eight to ten o'clock the 23d Infantry band played some choice selections, and at ten o'clock the dining hall was opened for supper. Before being seated Mayor Chase made an address of welcome to the conductors.

In the course of his remarks he very appropriately gave a brief history of the railroad, and spoke of Omaha as a railroad center.

The supper was gotten up in the best style of the hotel, and everybody did justice to it.

The toasts and responses were as follows:

First—"The conductors' Brotherhood, our honored guests." Response by W. L. Collins, Grand Chief Conductor.

Second—"Our national system of railroads." Response by Dr. Geo. L. Miller.

Third—"The Union Pacific railroad, the great international line connecting the Orient with the Occident." Response by Hon. A. J. Poppleton.

Fourth—"The Locomotive Department, the great power upon which commerce depends." Response by L. H. Congdon.

Fifth—"Our railroad conductors, the guardians of our lives and fortunes; may their success be equal to their well-known courtesy." Response by Samuel McElroy.

Sixth—"The great west as developed by railroads." Response by Hon. E. Wakely.

Seventh—"The Pullman Palace Car Company, the sure guarantee of public comfort to transient travelers." Response by Gen. C. F. Manderson.

Eighth—"Thomas Herkinson, the original proprietor of railroads—every locomotive whistle chronicles his never-fading fame." Response by E. F. Smythe.

Ninth—"The press; look out for the locomotive when the bell rings." Response by D. C. Brooks.

The banquet was continued till a very late hour, and was throughout a very enjoyable affair.

HITCHCOCK'S BULLIES.

How a Couple of Them Attempted to Assault the Editor of the "Bee."

Last evening about ten o'clock, a disgraceful and uncalculated attempt to assault Mr. Rosewater, editor of the Bee, was made by Paul Vandervoort and Boss Cunningham, who are two of the most noted of Hitchcock's strikers and bullies.

Mr. Rosewater and Mr. Thomas F. Hall were sitting in the reading room of the Grand Central hotel, engaged in conversation, when Vandervoort and Cunningham came up. They chimed in by telling some election news from Beatrice to which a reply was made that they knew already. Cunningham and Vandervoort then began nagging about the Hitchcock organization—that it was compact and had the elements of success. They had succeeded in the State convention and elsewhere, and they were bound to win in the legislature next winter. Most of this conversation was directed at Mr. Hall, who finally said that Mr. Hitchcock could not count on any more than twenty-five votes. Vandervoort next turned his attention to Mr. Rosewater, abusing him in violent language for the part he had taken in the campaign against Hitchcock, and called him a rebel, a spy. Mr. Rosewater told him he lied, and that he was the originator of that lie. Mr. Rosewater maintained his Unionism and Republicanism in an emphatic manner, whereupon Vandervoort grabbed him by the wrist. Rosewater told him to let go, and then Cunningham shook his fist in Rosewater's face, swearing at him like a pirate. At this juncture a crowd gathered around, and A. Patrick, who saw that they intended to assault Rosewater, stepped forward and interfered, and attempted to whip anybody who tried to lay hands on him. He did not propose to see two men assaulting one. This stopped the proceeding so far as Mr. Rosewater was concerned, but Cunningham and Vandervoort then pitched into Hall, who told them they lied. Cunningham in his remarks to Rosewater, charged him with trying to defeat the Republican party and with attempting to beat certain Republicans. Rosewater said his Republicanism was different from that of Cunningham, who had robbed the government, and that the Republicanism of the whole crowd to which Cunningham and Vandervoort belonged was nothing except an organized system of plunder and was ruining the party.

The affair created considerable excitement among the crowd of bystanders, all of whom condemned the conduct of Cunningham and Vandervoort in the most unmeasured terms, and it would have been unhealthy for them to have carried out their intention of assaulting Mr. Rosewater.
